JURY SERVICE IS SUGGESTED FOR ROTARIANS

Judge Russ Avery Tells of Way to Help Stop the Present Crime Wave

The need for intelligent citizens on the juries of the court in California was told Rotary club members at their meeting yesterday noon at the Chamber of Commerce dining room. The speaker was Judge Russ Avery of the Superior Court of Los Angeles.

He explained the common misunderstanding that a judge of California can sentence a man to prison for a definite time, and that the people often blame judges because criminals are not given harder sentences. The exact length of time that a prisoner must serve is determined by the state prison board, he said.

Judge Avery made a plea to the Rotary members to accept jury service if called, and even went a step further and suggested that some of them send their names in. Some people make it a point to dodge jury service and then complain of the outcome of trials in the court, a thing they have no right to do, according to the judge. On the other hand, some jurors would not miss serving for many thousands of dollars, they have told the judge after serving on some case.

Educational Work

George Moyse of the Rotary educational committee spoke briefly on the educational work of the club, telling of "The Lava Flow," the publication of Rotary in Hilo, Hawaii, and a number of other matters.

George Karr told of the results of last Saturday's field day, given as an aid to the Boy Scouts of the city. It was reported that $125 was raised by the Rotarians, while the amount raised by the Kiwanis will be announced at a meeting of that club this week. The question of "who won the game," brought forth laughter from those present, for the Rotary team lost to the tune of 18 to 4 in the indoor event.

J. Herbert Smith was called upon to give a few words to the members in regard to his European trip. He was told not to tell "everything," for he was to be called upon to give a detailed description as soon as he can get

Concert Pianist and Composer Coming

Mr. and Mrs. Jasper Garst of 407 West Milford street are anticipating with pleasure the arrival tomorrow of Mrs. Garst's nephew, Noble Kreider, concert pianist and composer, who is en route from the Orient to his home in Goshen, Ind. Mr. Kreider's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Kreider, were summer guests at the Garst home.

The Garsts' friends will be interested in the following mention Mr. Kreider received in the Seoul Press, published at Seoul, Korea:

"Mr. Noble Kreider of Goshen, Ind., and widely known as a concert pianist and composer, has been visiting Kwangju for two weeks on his trip through the Orient. He has given a number of recitals to the great delight of the missionaries and the Koreans who were invited to attend.

"Mr. Kreider has succeeded in recording several of the Korean tunes and will produce them either in their entirety or use them as a basis for compositions which he may produce later. He states that the Korean music which he has heard is built upon the old Greek scale, no attention being paid to the modern scale so generally used in the Occident. He also reports that from a musical standpoint the productions of Korea surpass those in Japan and China."

George E. Clayton's Horses at Big Fair

Glendale people are interested in the showing made this week by the four fine horses owned by George E. Clayton of 200 South Orange street and entered in the annual Riverside county fair.

The horse races and exhibits at the annual fair are always big attractions and Mr. Clayton's horses have made good records and received much attention. He had four horses entered, three of them being Little Sunset, who took second in one race; Marguerita de Louez, three-year-old, who is being exhibited in the show ring; Colonel Lou, three-year-old, who took second in one heat.

Mr. Clayton is to enter his horses at the Los Angeles county fair, to be held next week in Pomona.

CENTRAL AVENUE P.-T. A. IN MEET

Opening Session of Year Takes Place; Classes to Try for Honors

Activities of the Central Avenue Parent-Teacher association opened yesterday afternoon with the first meeting of the year at the school, where seventy-five mothers were gathered for a business session and social afternoon with the teaching staff.

Mrs. D. F. Reichard, president of the association, presided over the meeting which opened with the flag salute and singing of America.

According to the custom of the organization a count was taken of the mothers present to find out which room had the most mothers present and Miss Perkins' fifth grade was accorded first honor.

Honors for Class

The custom carried out last year of awarding a picture to the room having the largest representation of mothers has been abandoned for another original scheme of honor. The P.-T. A. has purchased a tall wicker flower basket, which is to be filled with flowers and brought to each meeting of the association. At that time the class having the largest number of mothers present will receive the basket to keep for a month.

Each class has been asked to select two class colors and upon receiving the P.-T. A. basket the class colors are to be tied on the handle and at the end of the year the class having the most ribbons on the basket will receive the basket as a permanent gift.

Democratic Spirit

Mrs. Eustace B. Moore, president of the Glendale P.-T. A. federation, was the speaker of the afternoon. She spoke of the democratic spirit of the P.-T. A. organization and stated that the first duty of the individual organizations was to the homes of their localities, while the federation combines the whole city into a working body. In continuing, she spoke of the county and state organizations and their part in securing beneficial school legislation. Bearing this out she quoted Supt. Will C. Wood as saying that $2,000,000 worth of school equipment has been secured through the activities of the California P.-T. A.

In closing Mrs. Moore read the

ARRANGE PROGRAM FOR GRAND VIEW SCHOOL SOCIAL

Foothill Improvement Club Members In Charge of Tonight's Gathering

A rare treat will be offered to Grand View residents tonight, according to Mayor Spencer Robinson, who called attention this morning to the "house warming" tonight at the Grand View school under the auspices of the Foothill Improvement association.

In order that Mayor Robinson and members of the City Council may be able to attend this social event, tonight's council meeting will adjourn early.

The program is one of unusual excellence in the opinion of Mr. Robinson whose familiarity with the musical world entitles him to speak with authority.

Several violin numbers will be played by Julius Kranz of 115 West Eulalia avenue who has played in concerts all over the United States and is recognized as one of this country's foremost violinists. He is a composer of note, also. Mr. Kranz will be accompanied by Miss Gertrude Champlain, of 441 Hawthorne street, whose piano playing has caused considerable favorable comment from time to time.

Tenor to Give Solos

Wilbur Herwig of 339 West Colorado street, whose civic spirit was demonstrated recently during the Tag Day, will sing several solos. He will be accompanied by his wife. Mr. and Mrs. Herwig arrived in Glendale recently from Philadelphia where Mr. Herwig was tenor soloist at one of the largest churches of the Quaker City. He is now soloist at the Immanuel Presbyterian church, Los Angeles.

Harry James of 1558 Wilson avenue is booked for an original monologue and some stories with which he will succeed in getting a good laugh from the audience.

President Harding On Membership List

A blue ribbon will be awarded the class at the Glendale Avenue Intermediate that stands first in percentage of enrollment in the Athletic association that has just been organized at that school. A great deal of rivalry is felt between the seven classes and memberships have been coming in thick and fast the last two days. Not only have most of the children enrolled their parents and near relatives as members, but President Harding, Mayor Robinson and a number of other "celebrities" are now on the membership list, some enthusiastic movie fans even buying a membership for their favorite actors and actresses.

The contest will close at four o'clock this afternoon and the ribbon awarded the class with the highest enrollment. The teachers of the seven classes who are helping the children build up the treasury of their new association are Miss Natalie Mackay, Miss Gladys Sharpe, Miss Avis White, Miss Carolyn Ainsworth, Miss Gertrude Grider, Floyd McMaster and E. H. Bremer. Thursday night the B8 II class stood first with an average of 92 per cent.

Local Legion Post to Hear of New Home

An unusually interesting meeting of the Glendale Post No. 127 of the American Legion will be held Friday night with Commanmander James F. McByrde in charge. It is also anticipated that there will be a large class of candidates for initiation into the post. Rev. C. M. Calderwood will also give an address.

The Richardson-for-Governor club is made up of those who oppose the Democratic candidate and his "light wines and beer" program. The members of the organization come from all of the political parties.

Judge F. H. Lowe is president of the club, A. H. Davis is vice-president, J. C. Sherer is secretary and A. T. Cowan is treasurer.

LOCAL MAN TELLS OF EXPERIENCES ON TRIP EAST

Meets Folks He Parted From Scores of Years Ago: He Boosts California

Napoleon LeBlanc, of Glendale, recently returned from a trip east, gives the following interesting interview:

"I have had the time of my life—a continuous feast everywhere I visited. In Montreal I met my favorite boyhood chum and brother to my sweetheart of sixty-five years ago. He and I left Canada sixty years ago, and we parted in Colinsville, Conn., a few months later and hadn't met since. At that time we could scarcely raise $20 between us. Now his city taxes are $2500 a year. Our meeting was as joyful as two brothers, and he entertained me royally. A few days later I found my younger sister married to a well-to-do Montreal man. I had not seen or heard of her since she was 6 years of age—forty-one years ago. She informed me of the death of a brother. She took me to the college where her son is studying for the priesthood, then to the Oracle St. Joseph, a shrine on the mountain. There are hundreds of canes, crutches, ankle supporters, braces, etc., bearing testimonials of miraculous cures. The chapel is crowded daily with tourists from the states and Canada, some praying for cure, others attending the services in an attitude of reverence, non-Catholics as well as Catholics.

Visits Glendale People

"In Montreal I visited Mr. and Mrs. M. Faber, of 215 East Palmer avenue, this city, who were spending the summer with Mr. and Mrs. Brydges, who spent the winter of 1921 in Glendale. Then I visited a brother in the eastern part of the Province of Quebec, near Nova Scotia.

"Being a descendant of Rene LeBlanc, the notary of the historic Arcadian colony, I was interested in the celebration of the laying of the cornerstone of the chapel being erected on the historic spot. Rev. Bishop LeBlanc who officiated is my third cousin. La Presse, of Montreal, August 16, published the account of the dedication, accompanied with his photo. In the same issue appeared my photo heading a half column about me.

"Many of my friends asked me

While a machine belonging to Oscar L. Chiniquy of Hollywood was standing on Broadway near Belmont about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon its rear end was struck by an automotive vehicle steered by H. D. Clark of 512 West Doran street. The rear axle of Mr. Chiniquy's car was damaged.

"Columbus at the Court of Ferdinand and Isabella" is the title of reading being given by Miss Isabel Tousey. William Justema will recite a dramatic reading: "Columbus in Chains." The program is in charge of Harold L. Brewster, coach of the public speaking class.

L. A. NIGHT SCHOOL HEAD SPEAKS TO STUDENTS HERE

Demand for More Education Growing, Says Principal; Real Determination

"Too many people are like pins—they are headed one way and pointed another!"

Vierling Kersey got a good laugh from students assembled last night in the auditorium of Glendale Union High school.

Mr. Kersey, who is principal of the night school at Los Angeles Polytechnic High school, commented on the fact that the 3821 students enrolled there compose the largest body of people to meet anywhere on the western coast regularly. He assumed no credit for the success of this institution, however, and remarked that he "merely happened to be the man who went around and put grease on the wheels wherever it was needed."

Cream of Students

"It is always a pleasure to come and talk with night school students anywhere," remarked Mr. Kersey. "Night school is the cream separator of the school system and the people who go to night school are really the cream of all students. It takes a good sort of student to keep coming regularly to night school and a good class of teachers to keep those students interested and give them something worth while.

"Students come to night school because they know what they want and come to get it. This isn't expressed only in dollars and cents but as a usual thing people come to night school because they want to live a richer and fuller life."

The crowded condition of all schools and colleges in the country is significant of the demand for more education, in the opinion of Mr. Kersey. He attributes this to the inspiration furnished during the war when men proved that they were able to master new subjects in a comparatively short time. He said that he was amazed, while he was an instructor in radio engineering, to find that boys from the farm could master this technical subject in only a few weeks.

Stand On Own Feet

The demand for more education may be traced to the American's desire to stand on his own feet and do things for himself, according to Mr. Kersey. He commented on the fact that people in this country like to be self-reliant.

Why should people pay so much attention to "fixing up" their exteriors and so little attention to fixing their interiors was inquired by Mr. Kersey. He remarked that persons might not have many brains but that those few brains should be organized anyhow.

"You know what happens when you fry gasoline instead of coal oil to light a stove," he exclaimed. "Well, the same thing happens when you use the wrong information in the right place.

Lot of Determination

"It takes a lot of determination to go to night school. You work hard all day and you are tired when you come home at night. You will find that it takes more determination when it becomes cold and rainy—of course it doesn't get that way in Glendale; I mean elsewhere.

"Too many people today are aiming at nothing—and they hit the mark," continued Mr. Kersey. "The only difference between what a man does and what a baby does is that a baby has no plan for what he does. Too many men are just grown-up babies."

A. L. Ferguson, principal of the local night school, made a brief talk on the night school and the necessity for approving the school bond issue.

Women's Union Holds All Day Gathering

The Women's Union of the First Baptist church held their regular all-day meeting yesterday at the church. Sewing candy bags for use by the Christian Center Mission in Los Angeles at Christmas occupied the morning after the women arrived at 10 o'clock.

Luncheon was served by members of District One with Mrs. W. S. Wood in charge. During the lunch hour Mrs. R. W. Mottern, secretary of the local W. C. T. U., spoke in behalf of the Wright bill.

The afternoon was given over to mission study, "India" being the subject of the program arranged by Mrs. F. H. Boynton. A review of the first two chapters of a book called "Building in India," was given by Mrs. F. H. Robinson. The program was closed with musical selections.

Christian Circle Club Holds Session

The women of the Christian church served dinner last night to fifty-two members and friends of the Christian Circle club meeting at the Christian church.

Following the meal a short business session was held with Miss Nell Leggitt, the club president presiding. The regular lesson was then taught by Miss Soper.

WIDOW OF SLAIN PASTOR MAY BE GRILLED AGAIN

NEW BRUNSWICK, N. J., Oct. 13.—Investigation of the murder of Rev. Dr. Edward W. Hall, wealthy rector of the fashionable Protestant Episcopal Church of St. John the Evangelist, and his beautiful choir leader, Mrs. James Mills, centered today about the home of the slain clergyman. There was a report that Mrs. Hall, the widow, was to be grilled again by state police who are working upon the theory that two or three men and one woman are involved. Counsel for Mrs. Hall was prepared to use all possible means of preventing this, even to the extent of seeking a court order. Mrs. Hall's lawyer said she had been annoyed sufficiently and that she has made it plain that she can throw no light upon the strange killing of her husband and his companion on the lonely Phillips farm, two miles from this city the night of September 14. The celebration which began last night for the return home of Clifford Hayes, formally charged with the murder, was continued today.

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 13.—The passengers and crew of the City of Honolulu, which burned to the water's edge in the Pacific, 650 miles from this port, were today en route to San Francisco on the United States transport Thomas. She reported she would arrive here late Sunday. The transfer of passengers was completed without incident in calm seas, radio messages stated. Arrangements were being made today by the Army Transport service, under the direction of Colonel A. W. Yates for the landing of the crew and passengers here Sunday. It is probable that the Thomas will go to her usual berth at the Army Transport docks, although there was a possibility that she might go to the pier of the Los Angeles Steamship company. In order that the passengers may be disembarked in orderly fashion and without annoyance, it was stated admission to the docks would be by pass only. It was expected at the office of Colonel Yates that the Thomas would reach here by 3 p. m. Sunday, although later advices will be received as to the exact docking time.

STREET CAR LINE FOR AVENUE IS NOW ASSURED

Financial Arrangement Is Near; Complete Work to Start Soon, Belief

Positive assurance that street car service will be established on South Glendale avenue in the near future was received with applause yesterday noon in the Broadway Inn, 637 East Broadway, at the weekly luncheon of the Glendale Advancement association.

However, it was stated today that several thousand dollars more will have to be pledged in order to take up the "loose ends" of the subscription campaign and to make it absolutely certain the necessary amount will be paid over.

Under the terms of a contract entered about four months ago, the Glendale & Montrose railway agreed to proceed with the necessary work attendant with the electrification of the Union Pacific line north of Verdugo road as soon as a bonus of $25,000 was placed in a bank, to be paid to them upon the completion of the work.

P. J. Hayselden, of 612 East Broadway, campaign manager for the collection of this bonus, yesterday reported total subscriptions amounting to $20,463.

"We have got to raise that $4500," he remarked with emphasis, "and we have got to do it quick!"

Gets Quick Action

Mr. Hayselden was taken at his word and all but $427 of the balance necessary was pledged in the next twenty minutes.

After some criticism that the campaign had not been put over before, W. L. Twining, manager for the F. P. Newport company, promised the association that if it would have $21,000 either in cash or signed notes in a bank by next Wednesday, he would see to it that the other $4000 was forthcoming.

This offer was received with enthusiasm and $110 was pledged by members of the organization at the luncheon. Herman Nelson, secretary of the association, stated that he knew where the unpledged balance could be secured.

Peter L. Ferry, of 614 East Acacia avenue, offered to underwrite the collection of the $21,000 and his offer was accepted at once.

Hotel and Post Office

That work on the new hotel for the northeast corner of Glendale avenue and Broadway is likely to be commenced in the near future was the report given by Mrs. Mabel L. Tight, of 612 East Broadway, chairman of the hotel committee.

Congressman Walter Lineberger is exerting his influence to get a branch post office for the vicinity of Glendale avenue and Broadway, according to C. E. Stanley, of 108 North Everett street, chairman of the post office committee.

A short talk on community service was given by Don T. Orput, representative of this organization, in Glendale.

Condition of Auto Causes Fatal Crash

A coroner's jury at Pulliam, Kiefer & Eyerick's funeral parlors this morning found that Patrick J. Conway of 519 Myrtle street met death Wednesday afternoon because of the fact that he was driving a car south on Central avenue—which was "not in good mechanical condition."

Rumor that Mr. Conway's car was sideswiped by a red touring car, which failed to stop, was dispelled when James B. Wylie testified that he looked up from his lawn at 1227 South Central avenue, which he was watering at the time, to observe Mr. Conway pass a red touring car driven by M. H. Miller of Claremont. Mr. Wylie stated that Mr. Miller's car did not come anywhere near the Conway car.

C. D. Miller of 303 North Central avenue, who was riding in his son's car, testified that he looked up when he heard the brakes on the Conway car squeak and saw the car roll off the paved section of the road and turn over.

The inquest was conducted by W. A. McDonald, chief deputy coroner for the county of Los Angeles.

Dr. Cortland Myers Will Speak Tonight

Dr. Cortland Myers, formerly pastor of the Tremont Temple Baptist church in Boston, Mass., will be speaker tonight at the last pre-communion meeting at the Presbyterian church. The meeting is to be known as "Family Night," it being the purpose of the church officers to have all church families in attendance at the meeting.

Glendale people have had the opportunity of hearing Dr. Myers before and he will receive a hearty welcome tonight.

The pre-communion meeting series will be followed by the communion service on Sunday morning, when a large number of new members will be publicly received into the church. There will be special music and the sermon will be preached by the assistant pastor, Rev. Louis Tinning, whose subject will be "Two Estimates of Life."

DOCTOR CLELAND IS AUTHOR OF NEW HISTORY BOOK

Occidental Professor Being Congratulated for Work In Volume Published

Dr. Robert G. Cleland, head of the history department at Occidental, is being congratulated on the appearance of his new book, "A History of California: The American Period," that has just come from the press of the Macmillan Publishing company.

It is a five-hundred-page volume, and while not yet thirty days old, has already been officially adopted as a text book by the University of California, and, according to reports, there is little doubt but what other institutions of higher learning will also use it as such.

Dr. Cleland is declared to have spent almost eight years off and on—"mostly off," the doctor states—in the preparation of this most comprehensive volume, and it is the wonder of the entire student body at Occidental how the doctor could have compiled a work of such importance in conjunction with his untiring service in the class room as head of one of the most important branches of study at the college.

The book confines itself strictly to the American period of California history, and is a companion volume to Dr. Charles E. Chapman's history which deals only with the Spanish period, and the two volumes form one of the most complete history of California up to the present time.

STARTS OUT ALL RIGHT

FALL OPENING OF WOMAN'S CLUB TAKES PLACE

Eagle Rock Organization Holds Affairs at Club House; Many Guests

The fall opening of the Twentieth Century Woman's club was held yesterday afternoon at their big club house at the corner of Kenilworth avenue and Colorado boulevard, Eagle Rock, with practically all active members present in addition to a number of invited guests.

The beautiful club house was prettily decorated with cosmos and greenery artistically placed in large floor vases throughout the spacious rooms.

Luncheon was called at 1 o'clock and the guests took their places in the huge dining room and sat down to a most delicious luncheon.

At the competion of the luncheon and while the guests were still at the table Mrs. Chester Ashley delivered a most comprehensive talk on the Wright act that comes up before the voters at the November election.

Guests Entertained

The guests then walked into the assembly room where they were delightfully entertained by charming little Miss Lillian Guenther, of Los Angeles, a pupil of Ruth St. Dennis, who gave two delightful interpretations of true aesthetic dancing, accompanied by the Knabe with the Ampico. This beautiful little girl is only 12 years old and has appeared in many of the Lasky super film productions and has been claimed as the protege of art circles in Los Angeles. Peggy Hamilton, the style authority is to take this child under her supervision, it being claimed that little Miss Guenther wears her clothes to perfection in the eyes of style experts.

Several selections were then played on the Ampico that had been loaned for the occasion thru the courtesy of the Hanacock Music company, after which Miss Marie C. Brehm spoke against the so-called California Water and Power act, at the completion of which Mrs. Flagg spoke in the affirmative on the same subject, which closed the entertainment.

A regular business meeting of the club was held prior to the luncheon at which Mrs. J. H. Moshier, secretary, read the minutes of the last meeting and regular club business was transacted.

JUNIOR CLUB WILL HOLD AFFAIR IN EAGLE ROCK

Young Folk Interested In Music Invited to Be at Box Luncheon

The Junior Club of Eagle Rock, a musical organization which holds the distinction of being the first federated club of its kind in California, and whose membership is composed of young musicians of unusual talent, will hold a box luncheon Saturday, October 14, at 12:30 p. m., at the beautiful home of Mrs. A. J. Braasch, 136 Canyon Trail.

The club has been organized three years, and on a number of occasions have held their meetings at the Woman's Club and have been visited and highly praised by a number of famous musicians.

Miss Iola Stephenson of East Hill avenue is president, and Miss Lucile Bessolo is vice-president.

All young people that are interested in music are cordially invited to attend, states Mrs. Braasch.

Factory Workers in Akron Own Diamonds

AKRON, Ohio.—Claim that factory workers here own over half of the more than $5,000,000 worth of diamonds possessed by Akron citizens is made by representative local jewelers. Women own almost nine-tenths of these diamonds.

"It is safe to state that an average taken among all women over sixteen years of age, among the factory workers, will give every one of them at least one diamond ring," declared George S. Dales, one of Akron's earliest jewelers. "The average worth of each diamond exclusive of the mounting, would be about $75.

"Diamonds owned by the men of this class would only average about $10 per man.

"Among office workers the number of male fingers that sparkle in the sun is negligible, but the per capita value of female twinklers is $150.

"Diamonds are strongest, of course, with the society women, wives and daughters of the factory owners and other wealthy Akronites. Here the average diamond wealth is $500 per. The husband, who has to bear the brunt, again runs a poor second in diamond proprietorship. His average is only $50."

President Harding has put women to the real test. He has named Miss Lucille Atcherson of Columbus as secretary of a foreign legation. Diplomats are not supposed to ever tell secrets.

ANOTHER HARRIMAN RISES IN TRANSPORTATION

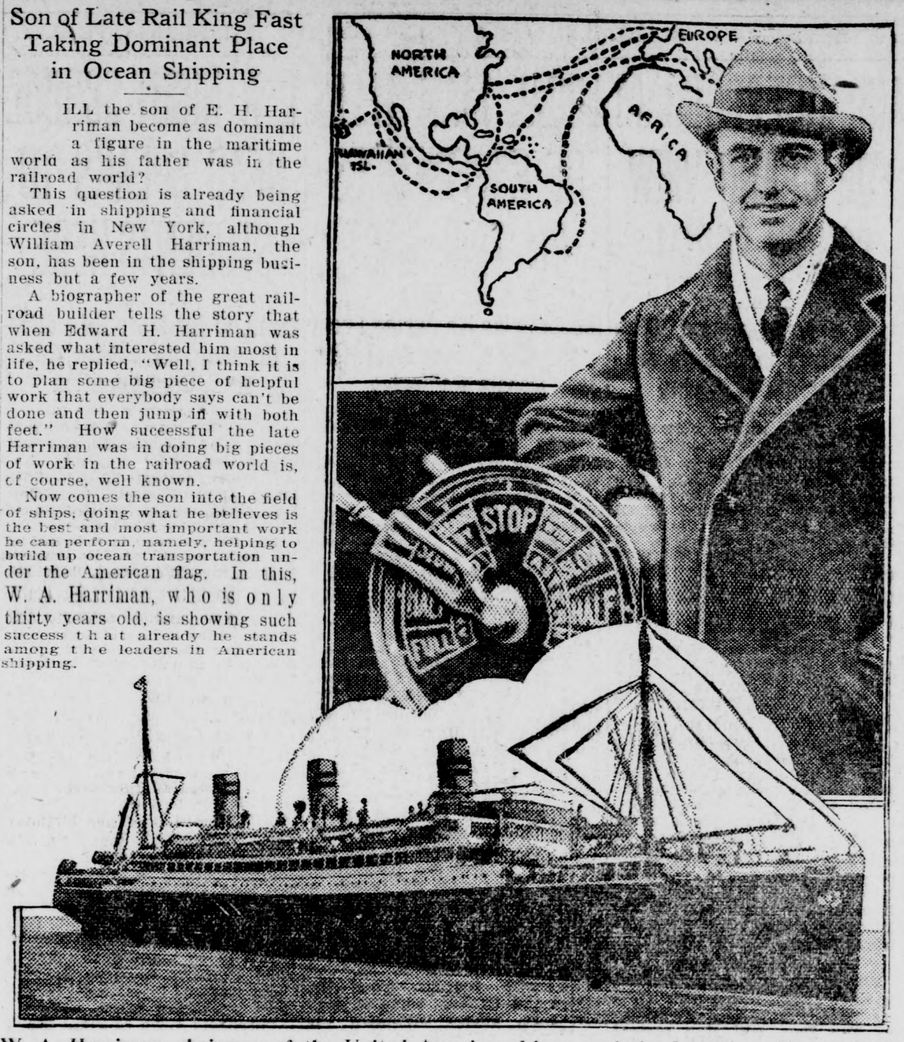
Son of Late Rail King Fast Taking Dominant Place in Ocean Shipping

ILL the son of E. H. Harriman become as dominant a figure in the maritime world as his father was in the railroad world?

This question is already being asked in shipping and financial circles in New York, although William Averell Harriman, the son, has been in the shipping business but a few years.

A biographer of the great railroad builder tells the story that when Edward H. Harriman was asked what interested him most in life, he replied, "Well, I think it is to plan some big piece of helpful work that everybody says can't be done and then jump in with both feet." How successful the late Harriman was in doing big pieces of work in the railroad world is, of course, well known.

Now comes the son into the field of ships, doing what he believes is the best and most important work he can perform, namely, helping to build up ocean transportation under the American flag. In this, W. A. Harriman, who is only thirty years old, is showing such success that already he stands among the leaders in American shipping.



W. A. Harriman, chairman of the United American Lines, and the Luxurious Transatlantic Liner "Resolute," One of the Thirty-Two Ships in the United American Fleet

Only two years ago the first steamer of the United American Lines, of which Mr. Harriman is chairman, sailed from New York for Europe. It was a small freighter. Today, these lines operate one of the largest fleets of ocean-going vessels under the American flag. The great passenger liners Resolute and Reliance, among the finest of modern ships, are running their first season between New York and Europe. Recently the new motorships Californian and Missourian, representing the most advanced type of cargo ship construction, were dispatched on their maiden voyages from New York, Boston and Philadelphia to the Pacific coast. A total of thirty-two ships now fly the United American Lines house-flag, and the assembling of so large and fine a fleet in so short a time has brought about the conviction in New York business circles that this generation, as well as the last, has a Harriman among the leaders of American transportation.

The ladies of St. Dominics' church held a bunco and 500 party on Thursday evening at the beautiful home of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Markey, 1021 Broadway.

After the games refreshments consisting of coffee and cake were served. There were about sixty-six guests present.

Important Meeting at School Tonight

Lineberger will make the principal address, and there will be a delightful musical program afforded by Anna Altman, a noted Russian pianist, who formerly held a full professorship of music in the Conservatory of Music at Odessa, Russia, and now connected with the Philharmonic orchestra in Los Angeles.

Professor George Moyse of the Glendale Union High school will also make an address, explaining briefly the proposed Glendale Union High school bond proposition, that comes up for a vote on October 20.

Claim Football Is Best Game for Boys

LONDON—"Never let your boy play golf. Let his grandfather play golf if he likes. It's a good man's game."

These are the opinions of Hamilton Archibald, given as President of the United Kingdom Band of Hope Jubilee Conference at Birmingham. He claimed that group games are most useful because they inculcate reverent submission to rules.

"Tennis is no game for boys, because it does not develop the co-operative spirit.

"There is nothing like football.

"Play develops the child's physique."

These were also among Archibald's pearls of wisdom. "What the world needs," he continued, "is men who can do things. It is already full enough of men who can talk things. Play assists the child in his effort to express himself.

"Play develops courage by fixing the mind, the predominant aim, and leads to the subordination of self, which is the basis of courage. The boy to be feared is the boy 'born with a beard,' the young-old child. Play develops a spontaneous spirit of co-operation."

Heirs Get Estate When Age 50 Years

NEW YORK—Mrs. Clementina Ghiozzi, of No. 113 Central avenue, West Hoboken, N. J., who died recently, arranged in her will for a son and daughter when "they reach old age."

Mrs. Ghiozzi leaves Mrs. Mary Ramella, a daughter, and Adam Ghiozzi, a son, $1000 each, but which they are to receive only when they reach the age of fifty years. They are now in their twenties.

BARS TRUCKS OFF VARIOUS STREETS THROUGH CITY

Long List of Thoroughfares Must Not Take Heavy Traffic, Is Order

Goblins don't worry truck drivers much but Ordinance No. 652 is "going to get 'em if they don't watch out."

A petition from property owners requesting that heavy traffic be prohibited on Lexington drive between Pacific avenue and Chester street was tabled at the last session of the city council because of the fact that this street is protected already under the provisions of a general ordinance.

A number of streets have been ruined already by heavy trucks, which have no business on residence streets, according to City Manager W. H. Reeves. He called attention to the present condition of Maple and Chestnut streets and the affect of the trucks on Geneva and Isabel streets.

Orders to Arrest

Police officers have been instructed to arrest any truck driver violating this ordinance. A suggestion has been made by Mr. Peeves that the police department should be notified by telephone whenever a truck is observed to traverse more than one block of the protected streets. This Bride Registers Under Maiden Name

This is Mrs. Edward L. Bernays and was married a few days ago. So, when she went to a New York hotel with her husband, wishing to keep her own identity or possibly forgetting that it was customary for a wife to register under her husband's name, she registered as Doris E. Fleischman. The difficulty was straightened out by adding under the husband's signature, "and wife." So it all ended happily and the clerks at the hotel have been instructed how registration should be made in the future of similar cases.

CLUB YEAR BOOK RECEIVES PRAISE

Committees In Charge Get Compliments on Work; Annual Sets Record

Considerable favorable comment is heard on all sides concerning the Tuesday Afternoon Club Year Book just issued from the job printing office of The Glendale Evening News. The book is a testimonial to the capabilities of the program committee, Mrs. F. McG. Kelley, chairman; Mrs. R. E. Chase, Mrs. George U. Moyse, Mrs. Charles A. Parker, Mrs. Warren Roberts and Mrs. C. H. Toll, who must have given much time to the preparation of the programs and the assembling of the material which is complete and makes the book invaluable to club members. Besides an abundance of current information, there is contained in the book a great deal of matter of historical interest.

Mrs. C. W. Houston, chairman, and members of the Year Book committee; Mrs. Frank Ayars, Mrs. S. Price Davis, Mrs. Helen W. Sawyer and Mrs. H. J. Syms are also receiving well-merited praise for their splendid work in planning the book and arranging the details of printing.

Attractive Book

And many members of the club are saying that as a specimen of the printing art this annual far surpasses any they have ever had. The body of the book is printed in green ink on soft white paper. The sixty-eight pages are bound in a leather-like cover of mottled green printed in gold, thus carrying out the club colors, green and gold. A pocket inside the back cover will prove a great convenience to members who carry the year books to meetings. The printed matter is conveniently and artistically arranged, according to the usages in vogue in modern print shops. One of the most pleasing features of the book is a double-page sketch of the new clubhouse now in course of construction.

That the Tuesday Afternoon club is "growing with Glendale" is easily seen by the appearance and size of the Year Book while the names of over 600 members listed therein is proof positive when it is known that the club had only sixty-nine members at the time of incorporation in 1908.

Tax Bills Display Considerable Increase

Fear lest the high school bonds will meet defeat at the approaching election next Friday because of the general dissatisfaction with the new tax rate was expressed this morning by Judge F. H. Lowe.

Considerable interest in this tax rate is being displayed on the part of citizens—especially those who own property.

The total rate is $4.55 per $100 of assessed valuation. Of this amount $1.54 is assessed by the city of Glendale while the balance is assessed by the county. This is divided into $2.18 for Glendale city schools, 76 cents for county expenses and 7 cents for food control work.

Tax bills show that the valuation of property in various sections of the city has been materially increased.

HE WAS HARD BOILED

Delbert Dievendorf of Detroit told his wife he wanted two fried eggs every morning for breakfast, one fried on one side and the other on the other side. But she didn't follow instructions. She fried them both so hard she wrecked their matrimonial ship. The husband was given a divorce.

SOCIAL EVENTS

HALLOWE'EN PARTY

A Hallowe'en party yesterday afternoon at the T. J. Keleher home at 528 North Louise street celebrated the ninth birthday of Geraldine Keleher. Twenty-four little guests were invited for the party and Mrs. Keleher was assisted in entertaining them by Mesdames George Bigelow, Harry Levey and Charles Rudel.

Mrs. Keleher worked out an elaborate and artistic Hallowe'en decorative scheme for her home. Orange and yellow were the predominating colors while black cats and witches were much in evidence.

During the afternoon various games were enjoyed and prizes awarded the winners. They also played a statue game on the lawn, where their pictures were taken.

After the games the children were called to the dining-room and seated about a long table beautifully decorated. A yellow tablecloth with a black border covered the table, and tall black baskets filled with large yellow chrysanthemums were placed as centerpieces. Clever Hallowe'en place cards and black and yellow favor baskets containing black and yellow candies marked each place, while a mystic light was shed over the scene by the yellow and orange shaded light globes.

One of the prettiest features of the luncheon was the large yellow birthday cake, decorated in black and bearing nine yellow candles. With the serving of the cake each child received another favor from a large grab bag.

In recognition of her birthday Geraldine received many pretty gifts.

Those invited for the affair were Betty and Peggy Clark, Fern Johnson, Katherine Peck, Caroline Everington, Margaret, Alice and Dorothy Brennan, Mabel Collins, Dorothy Hill, Esther and Edith Wintersgill, Dorthy Clark, Dorothy Styles, Katharine Gerard, Katherine Ferry, Virginia Keleher, Dorothy Levey, Margaret Lhez, Virginia Endicott, Thomas Taggert, Peter Olson, Charles Rudel and Jimmy Bobbitt.

OPENING DANCE BY ELKS

The opening dance of the fall season to be given by the Glendale lodge of Elks, No. 1289, at the club house on Saturday night, October 21, promises to surpass anything of its kind ever given by the local lodge, according to plans of the entertainment committee.

Rock Bottom Folk Guests at Reception

Employes of Glendale's branch of Daley's Rock Bottom grocery stores, participated last night in a reception given in Los Angeles honoring J. A. Daley, head of the organization, who has just returned from an extensive trip east. While in the east Mr. Daley attended the convention of the National Chain Stores Grocers' association.

The affair last night included the employes of all the stores, their families and friends. Heavy fines were assessed at all attempts at speech making and old-fashioned and modern dances were enjoyed following a buffet luncheon. A hundred prizes were distributed among the members of the organization.

LOOKED BIG ANYWAY

A New York policeman saw a man standing on Broadway smoothing out a roll of bills big enough to choke a cow, and took him to the station to be questioned. Upon investigation the roll proved to be made up of 1,850,000 Russian rubles, 437,000 Polish kronen and 8500 German marks. Police statisticians estimated the whole roll to be worth 30 cents in United States coin.

Actress Is Seeking Parents Long Lost

KANSAS CITY—In an attempt to unravel the mystery which surrounds her birth and parentage, Mrs. Franklin H. Cobb, of Oak Park, Ill., and formerly of Kansas City, has appealed to several of her friends here to assist her. She is a retired actress and the third wife of a former Kansas City artist.

A sealed letter and an engraved ring are clues by which Mrs. Cobb hopes to find her parents. She is 20 years old.

Only recently she instituted the search after receiving from a girl friend in Kansas this message:

"A sealed letter was delivered to your foster mother when you were adopted by her at the age of eighteen months. You were to have received that letter on your eighteenth birthday."

The young woman believes that if she can locate her two sets of foster parents they will give her information relative to her real parentage.

In letters written to her friends Mrs. Cobb stated she was adopted by James A. Payton and wife of Pawnee Rock, Kan., when she was about a year and a half old. She said she wore a ring at that time on which was engraved:

"Pauline G. Lambert, 1901."

Payton was proprietor of a string of hotels in Kansas. He died when the adopted girl was 8 years old. Mrs. Payton was married again, and her present whereabouts are unknown.

She was adopted for a second time by Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Wyatt. After living with them for some time Mrs. Cobb left to take up a stage career, taking the name of "Patricia Lambert."

The Wyatts moved from Kansas City four years ago.

Honolulu Population Is Growing Rapidly

HONOLULU. — The population of Honolulu is now set at 90,100, according to figures compiled by Samuel W. Tay, sanitary engineer of the board of health. The population of the territory as a whole is approximately 285,538, an increase of 8,654 in the last fiscal year. The 1920 census gave Honolulu a population of 83,327. Honolulu is growing at the rate of more than 3,000 yearly, late statistics show.

Baby Kissing Now Past Vote-Getter

AKRON, Ohio—Is the ancient custom of political candidates kissing babies going into the discard?

It looks here as if such is the case.

As in years gone by, office-seekers galore thronged the county fair here this fall, overworking the glad-handing art and passing out bushels of campaign advertising cards.

But a close survey of the situation failed to disclose a single instance of a candidate kissing a baby.

One thoughtful observer ventured the suggestion that since women now have the ballot a well-directed osculation implanted on the offspring of a qualified voter ought to be more effective than heretofore. Another exponent of direct action suggested a less roundabout way of applying this method.

The Duke of York is the patron of a boys' camp at New Romney. Half of the boys are apprentices and young operatives in mills, mines and workshops and half are from the public schools of England.

Historical Monument for Santa Barbara

SANTA BARBARA—A historical monument in Santa Barbara to cost not less than $40,000, is the objective of Starr King Post of the Grand Army of the Republic as briefly outlined recently before the directors' meeting of the Chamber of Commerce. The directors of the chamber have pledged enthusiastic co-operation and a committee will be appointed by President James B. Rickard of the chamber to lay out and execute the plans of a campaign to finance the undertaking. This committee will be the nucleus of a general committee representing all civic and patriotic organizations within the county.

The three members of the Thomas Starr King Post who launched the monument campaign were I. M. Clark, C. S. Bond and L. G. Mosher, commander of the local post. They were a sub-committee of the monument committee of five appointed by the post about a month ago consisting of Bond, I. M. Clark, Dr. C. S. Stoddard and L. G. Mosher, commander of the post and ex-officio member of all committees.

"I believe this the psychological time to consider the building of a historical monument in Santa Barbara commemorating the patriotic service of the few surviving members of the Grand Army of the Republic," said Comrade Clark, who was the spokesman before the Chamber of Commerce. "More than 400 Grand Army men have lived and died in Santa Barbara. Our post once had more than 125 members. Now we have but forty-eight living members.

"The idea is not a new one. C. C. Hunt, a Grand Army man who lived many years in Santa Barbara, left $500 in his will for such a monument as we now propose, such a one as he had long hoped to see raised. We have some $1400 in our treasury that could be devoted to that purpose. And one prominent Grand Army man has agreed to give $1000. I feel confident that there are more than twenty men in Santa Barbara who will give a like amount."

WILL AIR STAY PUT?

As soon as the upper air currents are charted gliders capable of flying hundreds of miles will be possible, according to Dr. George H. Madelung, German glide builder. But other flyers doubt it. They say the trouble is the upper currents of air won't stay chartered for any length of time.

Dark Queen Crowned With Brick by King

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—The coronation of a queen for only five dollars?

Judge Martin, in police court here, decided that this would be about right.

The complainant was "Queen Victoria" Gales, a dusky damsel of Second Alley; the defendant "King" Woofing, also colored.

The evidence showed that, during an argument over a man the "King" informally crowned "Queen Victoria" with a brick. Both their majesties paid $5 fines.

PINK CORSETS FOR MEN

The trade in men's corsets is improving in England, according to no less an authority than a publication devoted to male styles. The paper cites this as evidence that fashions once more are returning to the days of Beau Brummel dandies.

It looks as if the wearers would be even more than dandies, for the correct thing is described as follows:

"An evening corset, from fourteen to eighteen inches deep, is made of exquisitely soft white kid, the top cut in scallops with pink ribbon around the edge and carrying four suspenders."

Brilliant Meteor Seen In Honolulu

HONOLULU — Honolulu was surprised by a brilliant spectacle recently when an unusually bright meteor flashed through the sky and plunged into the sea with a low, rumbling roar like thunder. The phenomenon was observed from many parts of the city and was especially well seen from Waikiki beach, where without warning it came from almost directly above, falling in the direction of Diamond Head.

It seemed about the size of a large saucer, glowed brilliantly and exuded light to such an extent that a large expanse of beach and surf was plainly visible. A tail like that of a comet flamed behind.

Lawrence H. Daingerfield, chief of the local United Sttaes weather bureau, calculates that the meteor must have fallen not more than six or seven miles off shore.

This may be a twin sister to the meteor which was seen off the coast of California recently, it was said.

Left alone the girl became lost in unhappy reflections, and in the harrowing ordeal of attempting to readjust herself to the knowledge that Larry Divine, her lifelong friend, was the instigator of the atrocious villainy that had been perpetuated against her and her father. She found it almost equally difficult to believe that Mr. Theriere was so much sinned against than sinning as he would have had her believe. And yet, did his story not sound even more plausible than that of Divine which she had accepted before Theriere had made it possible for her to know the truth? Why, then, was it so difficult for her to believe the Frenchman? She could not say, but in the inmost recesses of her heart she knew that she mistrusted and feared the man.

As she stood leaning against the rail, buried deep in thought, Billy Byrne passed close behind her. At sign of her a sneer curled his lip. How he hated her! Not that she ever had done aught to harm him, but rather because she represented to him in concrete form all that he had learned to hate and loathe since early childhood.

Her soft, white skin; her shapely hands and well-cared for nails; her trim figure and perfectly fitting suit all taunted him with their superiority over him and his kind. He knew that she looked down upon him and his kind. He knew that she looked down upon him as an inferior being. She was of the class that addressed those in his walk of life as, "my man." Lord, how he hated that appellation!

The intentness of his gaze upon her back, had the effect so often noted by the observant, and suddenly aroused from the lethargy of her misery the girl swung around to meet the man's eyes squarely upon her. Instantly she recognized him as the brute who had killed Billy Mallory. If there had been hate in the mucker's eyes as he looked at the girl, it was as nothing by comparison with the loathing and disgust which sprang to hers as they rested upon his sullen face.

So deep was her feeling of contempt for this man, that the sudden appearance of him before her startled a single exclamation from her.

"Coward!" came the one word, involuntarily, from her lips.

The man's scowl deepened menacingly. He took a threatening step toward her.

"Wot's dat?" he growled. "Don't get gay wit me, or I'll black dem damps for yeh," and he raised a heavy fist as though to strike her.

The mucker had looked to see the girl cower before his threatened blow—that would have been ample atonement for her insult, and would have appealed greatly to his Kelly-gang sense of humor. Many a time had he threatened women thusly for the keen enjoyment of hearing their screams of fright and seeing them turn and flee in terror. When they had held their ground and opposed him, as some upon the West Side had felt sufficiently muscular to do, the mucker had not hesitated to "hand them one." Thus only might a man uphold his reputation for bravery in the vicinage of Grand avenue.

He had looked to see this girl of the effete and effeminate upper class swoon with terror before him; but to his intense astonishment she but stood erect and brave before him, her head high held, her eyes cold and level and unafraid. And then she spoke again.

"Coward!" she said.

Billy almost struck her; but something held his hand. What, he could not understand. Could it be that he feared this slender girl? And at this juncture, when the threat of his attitude was the most apparent, Second Officer Theriere came upon the scene. At a glance he took in the situation, and with a bound had sprung between Billy Byrne and Barbara Harding.

CHAPTER VI.
The Mucker at Bay

"What has this man said to you, Miss Harding?" cried Theriere. "Has he offered you harm?"

"I do not think that he would have dared to strike me," replied the girl, "though he threatened to do so. He is the coward who murdered poor Mr. Mallory upon the Lotus. He might stoop to anything after that."

"Go below!" he shouted. "I'll attend to you later. If Miss Harding were not here I'd thrash you within an inch of your life now. And if I ever hear of your speaking to her again, or offering her the slightest indignity I'll put a bullet through you so quick you won't know what has struck you."

"T'ell yeh will?" sneered Billy Byrne. "I got your number, yeh big stiff; an' yeh better not get gay wit me. Dey ain't no guy on board dis ship dat can hand Billy Byrne dat kin' o' guff an' get away wit it—see?" and before Theriere knew what had happened a heavy fist had caught him upon the point of the chin and lifted him clear off the deck to drop him unconscious at Miss Harding's feet.

"Yeh see wot happens to guys dat get gay wit me?" said the mucker to the girl, and then stooping over the prostrate form of the mate Billy Byrne withdrew a huge revolver from Theriere's hip pocket.

"I guess I'll need dis gat in my business purty soon," he remarked.

Then he planted a vicious kick in the face of the unconscious man and went his way to the forecastle.

"Now maybe she'll tink Billy Byrne's a coward," he thought, as he disappeared below.

Barbara Harding stood speechless with shock at the brutality and ferocity of the unexpected attack upon Theriere. Never in all her life had she dreamed that there could exist upon the face of the earth a thing in human form so devoid of honor, and chivalry, and fair play as the creature that she had just witnessed threatening a defenseless woman, and kicking an unconscious man in the face; but then Barbara Harding had never lived between Grand avenue and Lake street, and Halsted and Robey where standards of masculine bravery are strange and fearful.

AUTHOR INDICTS ENGLAND IN CONTROVERSY OVER KIPLING

London Playwright Lays Blame at Door of Britain and Defends United States

By DAVID M. CHURCH
For International News Service

LONDON.—Gone are the days when the statesmen had international politics for their own little plaything.

Everybody in England seems to be an authority on international affairs now.

Margot Asquith has had her fling. Rudyard Kipling, the author, was thrust into the field. General Frederick Maurice is dickering with the subject and there are any number of others who are dabbling in the matter in an amateur way. International politics bid fair to take the place of bridge and other indoor sports.

Henry Arthur Jones, playwright and author, is one of the recent converts to the game of international politics .

Jones came to the defense of America in the Kipling controversy, but wound up by making an attack upon his own country.

"We Have Only Ourselves to Blame" may be the title of the next play from the Jones pen, at least that is the tone of his dip into the international political pool.

"Let us whip our own defaults before we utter a word of reproach against any past or present shortcomings of our allies," Jones said. "It is we ourselves with new dangers and approaching calamities. It is we ourselves who have summoned new foes from all parts of the earth and invite them to rise up against us and destroy us.

"On the 11th of November, 1918, England had topped all her past great centuries of achievement. She stood for one moment at her supremest height, and then, having defeated Germany, she made haste to defeat herself. It is we ourselves who have done it. We have encouraged our enemies and quarreled with our friends. We have made dirty bargains with murderers and thieves and have broken our word to guarantee France from future devastation and dismemberment. We have legalized and subsidized sedition at home and fostered disorder and anarchy abroad.

"Sing thy Swan Song, England, and prepare to sit in the dust, with 'Ichabod' written upon thy forehead, unless thou now, in these last minutes of the eleventh hour, arise and nerve thyself with thy old immitigable might and, summoning thy true sons to trample out thy traitors and false teachers, gather thyself in a new unity of national aim and endeavor to redeem thyself from the dangers that encompass thee and to fulfill a larger and yet larger and ever enlarging destiny!"

Rather a severe indictment, but a general election is on the way, and Jones selected the die-hard Morning Post as his rostrum. This may be the answer.

APPARATUS AND DEVICES

By RALPH BROWN, RADIO ENGINEER

A VARIABLE GOOD LEAK

This device is particularly useful with vacuum tubes of the "soft" type, used as detectors, where adjustable leak resistance is desirable for the best operation of the tube. By placing the switch lever midway on the contacts and bringing the filament up to proper brilliancy it will at once be noted that by moving the switch lever either to the right or left an increase of signal strength is obtainable. It may also be noted by switching to zero or off position that this is done at a materially less value of filament current.

It consists of ten separate value of grid resistances ranging from one-half megohm to five megohms in steps of approximately one-half megohm.

Each tube, whether detector, amplifier or oscillator, requires different values of resistance, depending upon its operating characteristics. This device saves the purchase of several of different values.

RADIO EXPLAINED

By Lieut. John R. Irwin
Instructor U. S. Air Service

CURRENT CONTROL

In electrical work, especially in radio, the need is constantly arising for adjusting a current to a specified value. This is usually done by varying the resistance of the current. Changes in resistance are generally made by means of resisters, which consist in general of single resistance units, or groups of such units made of suitable material. These may be made variable, in fact, they usually are variable in radio practice, or they may be fixed in value. Variable resisters are sometimes called "resistance boxes" or "rheostats," depending upon the current carrying capacity, range and form.

A resistance box consists of a group of coils of wire assembled compactly in a frame or box. It is so arranged that a single coil may be introduced into the circuit by manipulating the switches or plugs. The extreme range of such an instrument may be from a hundredth of an ohm, up to 100,000 ohms. An "ohm" is the unit of resistance and will be discussed at greater length in a succeeding article. Each of its component units is accurately standardized and marked with its resistance value. By this means it is possible to know precisely what resistance is introduced into the circuit by the resistance box. The coils are wound with fine wire, and in such a way that there are no appreciable magnetic fields about them. They are intended solely for carrying feeble currents, usually no more than a fraction of an ampere.

A continuation of this subject, "Current Control," dealing with resistance units and materials used in their making, will follow in succeeding articles.

UNCLE WIGGILY'S RAINY DAY

There was a clatter and rush of feet up the front steps of Uncle Wiggily's hollow stump bungalow one morning. The bunny rabbit, who had just finished his breakfast, looked at Nurse Jane. Miss Fuzzy Wuzzy, the muskrat lady housekeeper, looked at Uncle Wiggily.

"I wonder who that is?" she whispered.

Uncle Wiggily was just going to say he hoped it wasn't the Fuzzy Fox or the Woozie Wolf when the door opened and a jolly voice cried:

"Will you lend me a toadstool umbrella, Uncle Wiggily?"

"Bless my pink nose, it's Mrs. Littletail!" cried Mr. Longears, as he saw the rabbit lady mother of Sammie and Susie. "Is it raining, Mrs. Littletail?" he asked.

"Raining hard," she answered. "I went to the store and didn't take an umbrella and, as I have my new bonnet, I didn't want to get it wet."

"I'll get you a toadstool," offered Nurse Jane, for Uncle Wiggily kept some extra ones in the bungalow in readiness for rainy days.

"How are the children, Mrs. Littletail?" asked Uncle Wiggily, as Nurse Jane went to the closet for the toadstool umbrella. "I hope Sammie and Susie are well."

"Oh, they're well enough!" answered Mrs. Littletail, with something like a sigh of despair. "They're too well. That's the trouble, Uncle Wiggily."

"What do you mean—that it's the trouble?" inquired the bunny.

"Well, this is a rainy day," went on Mrs. Littletail. "Sammie and Susie have no school, for some reason or other, and they're at home. As it rains they can't go out to play and they're in the house, cutting up all sorts of capers. I expect to find things all upside down and topsy-turvy when I get back. I hopped as fast as I could, but I just had to go to the store, and I just dread to go back!"

"Ha! Ha! Ha!" laughed Uncle Wiggily. "Boys and girls must play, you know, even on rainy days. And I know what it is to stay shut up in the house. If you don't mind, Mrs. Littletail, I'll hop over with you and try to amuse Sammie and Susie while they have to stay in on account of the rain."

"I'll be delighted to have you," spoke Mrs. Littletail. "Perhaps they'll leave the roof on the house if you come over."

Uncle Wiggily held the toadstool umbrella over Mrs. Littletail's new bonnet, keeping off the rain, and soon the bunny lady

"Can't you play some quieter and gentleman were at the Littletail home. As they drew near they heard a banging, hammering, pounding noise.

"Gracious goodness. What's that?" cried Mrs. Littletail.

Uncle Wiggily opened the door and saw Sammie and Susie on the floor. Susie was banging a spoon on a tin pan and Sammie was waving a wooden sword over his sister's head.

"Oh, my! What are you doing?" cried the rabbit lady.

"We're playing soldier," answered Sammie. "And Susie is my prisoner and I'm going to tickle her with the sword—and—"

"But I'm going to get away if I can!" panted Susie, "and I'm beating my tin pan drum to call my soldiers to capture Sammie."

Now let's see you nibble ears!

game?" asked Mrs. Littletail. "Here is Uncle Wiggily come to amuse you."

"Oh, hurray!" cried Sammie and Susie. Then they stopped playing soldier and raced around the bunny, calling: "Please amuse us! Please amuse us! Please amuse us!"

"I'll do my best!" Uncle Wiggily said, laughing. "How would you like to make a scrap book?"

"What is it?" asked Sammie.

"It sounds jolly," spoke Susie.

"I think it will be fun," went on Uncle Wiggily. "And it is a quiet game. Find me two old books, Mrs. Littletail, if you please, some old pictures you don't want and some paste. Sammie, Susie and I will cut out the pictures and paste them in the books. Then they'll be scrap books—made up of all sorts of picture scraps, you see.

"I'll show Sammie and Susie how to do it, and then whoever of them makes the best scrap book will get a prize.'"

"Oh, that will be lots of fun!" laughed Sammie and Susie.

Soon they were busy with paste pot, old books, pictures and scissors. It was easy to paste the cut-out pictures in the scrap books, and Sammie and Susie were having fun doing this, while Mrs. Littletail had a chance to be quiet and darn some stockings.

All of a sudden, though, the door was pushed open, and in from the rain came the bad Bob Cat.

"I want ears to nibble!" he howled, shaking the tassels on his own ears. "Ears I want, and ears I must have!" he howled.

But Uncle Wiggily caught up the pot of paste. Quickly he daubed some paste on a piece of strong paper, and, before the Bob Cat knew what the bunny was going to do, Uncle Wiggily clapped the sticky paper over the bad chap's mouth.

"Now let's see you nibble ears!" cried the bunny.

"Oh, wob! Glob! Slub! Glub!" was all the Bob Cat could say, for he couldn't open his mouth, even to talk. And he was so afraid of what had happened that out of the house he ran, and didn't nibble Uncle Wiggily at all.

"This was my lucky day—even if it rained!" laughed the bunny. Then the scrap books were finished, and Sammie and Susie each won a prize. And if the feather duster doesn't try to go swimming in the ink bottle and splash the fountain pen all up, I'll tell you next about Uncle Wiggily's paper hat.

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

A TYPICALLY AMERICAN SCENE

If I were an artist and wanted to paint a picture of a typically American scene, there are two subjects that I should choose.

One would be the crowd at the Harvard-Yale game. I suppose it would be difficult to catch the spirit of that vast gathering but, if one could get something of the vastness, the enthusiasm, the extravagance, the intensity, one would get something typically American.

And the other typically American scene would be the station at some summer resort at the time of the morning train on which the men go to work or the evening train when they come back."

(One might do both morning and evening, and reverse Mr. Browning's "Meeting at Night and Parting in the Morning" for a title.)

Is Your Station Like This?

I think I like the morning scene best. At our own particular station there is a lovely background of tree covered hill. The little country station is ugly, to be sure, but being old and weather beaten it does not offend the landscape like new ugliness. The men who have come over in the bus stand around the platform in little groups laughing and jollying each other. Private machines drive up from time to time, the man gets out, the woman takes the wheel, two or three youngsters swarm over the back seat to kiss daddy goodbye. Some of the wives sit there waiting for the train, others set trimly shod feet on electric starters, throw back a smile to their knights of the modern joust, give the wheel a competent twist and are gone back to their duties, or pleasure.

A Fine Lot of Men

The men are a fine looking lot, clean shaven, well groomed, well dressed, but not too well dressed. They are men at their best age, mostly between 30 and 50—men of force and drive (else they would not have won through to sufficient success to make two homes a possibility) men of that fine middle class molded by the discipline of hard work but not crushed by the grind of a monotonous poverty.

I Like Those Men

I love the way they jolly each other and the bus man who brings them over and the pretty girl who sells the tickets. I love their boyish laughs and their good carriage and their clean-cut American looks. And I love the generosity which makes them willing to spend three hours of their day on trains and busses that their women and children may be kept from the burden and heat of the city.

I don't know whether it would be possible for an artist to put some of this feeling into a picture. Perhaps it wouldn't produce an artistic effect. I don't know. Come to think of it an artist did do something of the sort once and it was a very popular picture. Do you remember Gibson's "Monday Morning?" (Don't confess being that old you don't feel like it.) Haven't we someone who can do a companion piece to that? I should like to hang it on my wall.

Practical Housekeeping by Florence Austin Chase.....

SOME RECIPES FOR CHILDREN'S MENUS

Beef Juice—Wipe one pound of round steak with a cloth wrung out of cold water, slightly broil it and press the juice out with a lemon squeezer or meat press. This juice may be given cold, seasoning with a little salt, or warmed by placing the cup which holds it in warm water.

Broths—Mutton, chicken, veal and beef broths are all made and used in precisely the same manner. Put one pound of finely-chopped lean meat, including some of the bone, in a saucepan with two cups of cold water and one-eighth teaspoon salt. Cook for three hours over the simmering burner, or until it has been reduced to one cup; strain through muslin, and when cold carefully remove the fat, adding more salt if required. It may be fed warm, or cold in the form of a jelly.

A very nutritious broth is made by thickening with a little cornstarch, simmering for ten minutes, then adding one-third cup milk and two tablespoons thin cream.

Scraped Beef or Meat Pulp—Broil a piece of round or sirloin steak very slightly, then scrape or shred it with a knife; from one-half to one tablespoon may be given to a child of eighteen months.

Barley Water — Thoroughly blend one tablespoon barley flour with three tablespoons cold water, then add, while constantly stirring, to one and one-half cups boiling water containing one-eighth teaspoon salt. Cook for twenty minutes in double boiler and strain. Add enough water to bring the whole up to two cups.

Barley Gruel or Barley Jelly—This is made in the same manner as the above, but from two to four tablespoons of the flour is used, according to the thickness of the gruel desired.

When any of these farinaceous foods are to be mixed with milk, the milk should be added directly after removing the gruel from the fire, and stirred two or three minutes.

Albumin Water—Put the white of one fresh egg, one cup of cold water, a pinch of salt and a few drops of vanilla in a bottle and shake thoroughly. This is to be fed cold with a spoon or from a bottle.

Dried Bread—Either stale or fresh bread (that from whole wheat is to be preferred) may be used; it is cut in thin slices and placed in the oven, with the door open, and quickly dried until it is crisp, but not browned. It is in many respects preferable to crackers for little children.

Coddled Egg—Place a fresh egg, shell on, in boiling water and remove from fire immediately. Let stand eight or ten minutes, when the white will be the consistency of jelly.

Fruit Pulp—Dried fruits should be soaked in cold water over night then stewed with a little or no sugar until they are soft, then put through a fine strainer. Apricots, apples or peaches may be prepared in this way.

Strained Vegetables — Select vegetables as fresh as possible. They should be steamed or boiled in a small amount of water; since much that is valuable dissolves in the water, this should be used in soups, gravies, etc. Cook vegetables until very tender, strain, then rub them through a fine sieve for all children up to the age of three; for those up to seven or eight they should be thoroughly mashed.

Milk Toast—Dip pieces of nicely toasted bread (white or whole wheat) in hot milk. When soft remove to serving dish.

FAILS TO O. K. NOMINATION OF FIRST WOMAN DIPLOMAT

Senate Does Not Confirm Appointment and John Sharpe Williams Receives Blame

WASHINGTON.—Objections raised by Senator John Sharpe Williams, Democrat, of Mississippi, are said to have been responsible for the failure of the senate, in the closing sessions of congress, to confirm the nomination of Miss Lucile Atcherson, of Columbus, Ohio, as America's first woman ever to be named for an important diplomatic post by the president. Miss Atcherson had been nominated to be secretary of embassy, fourth class.

Miss Atcherson had recently passed the civil service examination for appointment to a high diplomatic position, and it was predicted that her appointment as one of the secretaries of the United States embassy in France would follow soon after the return of Secretary Hughes from Brazil.

The department of state ruled, with the approval of President Harding, that women are eligible for leading positions in the diplomatic service. Miss Atcherson was the first woman to qualify under this ruling. The examination which she was obliged to take required a knowledge of international law and history and the ability to speak French fluently.

Miss Atcherson is a college woman. She was active in the last years of the suffrage fight and was instrumental in getting the municipal vote for the women of Columbus. During the war she worked in her own city and later went abroad, serving under Anne Morgan in the interest of the work for devastated France. When Miss Morgan returned to America Miss Atcherson carried on her work.

Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton, vice-chairman, and other members of the republican national executive committee, have long urged that women be recognized as qualified for the diplomatic service.

Beauty Chats by Edna Kent Forbes

HEALTHY TEETH

It has been a long time since we have talked about teeth in this space. They are perhaps not a pleasant subject of conversation, yet it is important to know something about them and it is most important to be convinced of the necessity of scrupulous care.

If, from early childhood, the teeth are brushed twice a day and a dentist is visited twice a year the teeth should be healthy and beautiful into a very advanced age. Toothaches and gum troubles should be unknown, not only this but a sweet and well-formed mouth, good digestion, and as a result a good complexion should follow. Therefore vanity alone should make us all most careful of our teeth. That we are not is proved by the number of prosperous dentists.

Perhaps I should not bother my readers with all this advice; we all know it though we do not all heed it. I would rather make a suggestion for strengthening weak teeth and improving the health of ailing ones. If you follow my suggestions you may not feel the benefit for a year, but after that you will feel it all your life. It is simply this. Include a certain per cent of coarse-grained food in your daily diet, things that are difficult to chew. This exercises and strengthens the teeth. And, like any other part of the body, they respond to exercise.

For instance, discard white bread entirely and eat whole wheat. Fine white bread is responsible for a depressing amount of tooth decay because it forms gas in the stomach and increases the amount of fermentation in the mouth. The coarse particles of the whole wheat bread tend to scrape and clean the teeth and to stimulate the gums by friction against them. Coarse grained cereals, bran and cornmeal, for instance, are also good, also raw fruit.

E. B. G.:—When the lashes and brows are straw color as yours are, they should be darkened with some harmless stain, such as a decoction from walnut shells; but I should never risk a chemical dye on the lashes. The only inconvenience of using this stain is the fact that it must be applied frequently as it will wear off much faster than a dye. Use a fine sable brush so only the hairs will be stained.

Worried One:—I agree with you that "many young women have lines around their mouths," but they need not have them. If you are one of them stop doing the things that cause these lines. Take care of the teeth. Keep the mouth mobile through exercise and do not bite the lips or form any other bad habits that make the mouth age prematurely.

Brown Eyes: — With dark brown hair, black eyes and medium shade of complexion, your colors are all of these in the autumn leaves.

CHAPTER XXX

Bad Germ Babies

Last week I told you about the good germs and how we could not live without them. I told you of the wonderful Nitrifying family, the Yeast family the Saphrophytic family, etc. Now you know something about these so I must tell you about some of the germ family that are not good; whose growth we must prevent and avoid as much as we can.

I want to tell you especially about those harmful bacteria or germs that are liable to get into our milk if our mamas can not nurse us and we have to be fed milk that is really intended for cows' babies, so that you will understand the reasons for the necessity of clean milk for us.

I get but one bottle a day of cow's milk, but my Mama is just as particular about the milk for my one bottle as she would be if I were not living mostly on the wonderful milk that is made especially for me by my dearest.

Because milk is just as good food for bacteria babies as it is for human babies, if they get into it those bacteria babies thrive and grow and grow and raise very large families.

Some of the bad—yes, very, very bad germs or microsoopic plant families that can get into milk are tuberculosis, typhoid, diphtheria, septic sore throat, scarlet fever, foot-and-mouth disease, diarrheal and disenteric germs. These germs may get in the milk from some human source on the farm, or at the dairy, or in transportation, or in our own households.

Sometimes if the cow has tuberculosis or foot-and-mouth disease or some other disease, the milk gets the germs from the cow itself. Now you can see how very important it is that milk that is fed to us should come from healthy cows, and that it should be clean and fresh and handled only by healthy persons, can't you?

Of course good milk means that the cows and milkers and all handlers must be healthy. It means that they must not have been in contact with any contagious disease, the diseases that are caused by some of those harmful germs I mentioned. It means that all the milk pails, bottles, cans and everything in which the milk is put must be sterlized shortly before being used. It means that milk must be cooled immediately upon leaving the cow and kept at a temperature not above 50 degrees F.

Milk that is handled with this very special care and is taken from cows that have been tuberculin tested and examined by a veterinary physician, so as to be sure as far as possible they are not tubercular, is sold in most cities under the name of certified milk. Of course, the extra care taken in every way makes this the most expensive milk, but I know you feel the same as my family does, that anything that means so much in the protection of our lives is not too expensive.

If milk is certified it will be so marked on the bottle or cap. My doctor says you should not accept milk as certified unless it is so marked, no matter what the dealer might say.

This certified milk means that it is milk of the highest quality, obtained by cleanly methods under the special supervision of the Medical Milk commission. It is raw milk but this certification means that everything has been done that is possible to keep it from contamination, adulteration and disease.

If anything should occur at the dairy which would make the milk temporarily below these standards the Medical Milk commission causes the dealer to take the certificates off the bottle. If this should happen while you are taking the milk, it is best to boil the milk to sterlize it until the certificate is returned.

I suppose you are beginning to wonder how such a lad of my tender months could know so much about milk and germs n'everything, but I have heard my Doctor explain it to my Cherie and my Daddy, and you remember I told you that we babies know everything and we understand everything that is said before us. If we don't now, we do later. I think you had better remember that. Next week I am going to tell you more about this milk question. It is so very important. Au revoir.

Book Reviews

Admirers of Edgar Guest's poems will no doubt take interest in the announcement that among the new books recently issued for distribution at the Glendale public library on Harvard street is one of his latest, "All That Matters," which is really a collection of his most notable work of recent years. The new books issued also include the following volumes:

"The Country Life Book of Building and Decorating," edited by Reginald T. Townsend.

"The Amouretta Landscape" and other stories, by Adeline Adams. This book is principally about painters and sculptors, their assistants, models and families. These short stories of unusual comedy are written by the wife of a distinguished sculptor.

"Ghost Girl" by Edgar Saltus. There is a breathless suspense which attends the unraveling of a mystery. There is the glamour of beautiful homes; there is romance of an elusive love affair; there is contact with brilliant minds and unusually interesting characters.

"The Ways of Laughter," by Harold Begbie. A light-hearted novel.

"The Historical Geography of the Holy Land," by Prof. George Adam Smith, D. D., LL. D.

"Oil Encyclopedia," by Marcel Mitzakis.

"Tramping with a Poet in the Rockies," by Stephen Graham.

"Through the Shadows," by Cyril Arlington. An English house-party in honor of an American girl furnishes the setting for this comedy of love and of assumed identities, of consequent entanglements and of jocund mirth.

"The Shadow of the Astral," a mystic narrative of interest to those who are attracted to psychical or metaphysical investigation.

"The Hidden Places," by Bertrand W. Sinclair. An interesting, compelling story.

GIVE EXPLANATION OF MEASURES TO AID VETERANS

Authorized Statement Shows Why Propositions 1 and 3 Should Be Voted

The Glendale Evening News has been asked to publish the following authorized statement relative to the California veterans' legislation, being Nos. 1 and 3 on the November ballot:

These two propositions, 1 and 3, are to be read in connection with each other and both apply to California veterans' legislation as given below. Vote "Yes" on both.

Proposition 1, the veterans validating act, is a constitutional amendment for the sole purpose of permitting the use of state credit and moneys derived from the sale of bonds authorized under proposition 3, to aid worthy California veterans in the acquisition of homes and farms under the plan set out in the following measures.

California veterans' legislation consists of the veterans welfare act and the veterans' farm and home purchase act, both passed unanimously at the 1921 session of the state legislature. Proposition 3 upon the November ballot provides for the issue of $10,000,000 in state bonds for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of these two acts, a resume of which immediately follows:

Board to Have Charge

The moneys derived from the sale of these bonds will be administered by the Veterans' Welfare Board of California. This board consists of five members appointed by the governor and holds office for periods ranging between one and four years. At the present time the veterans' welfare board is composed of two prominent bankers and three business men who were selected with great care and, after a thorough examination had been made as to their qualifications to fill these responsible positions. The chairman alone draws salary, and all expenses of this board are included in the purchase cost of homes or farms.

The object of California veterans' legislation is to provide veterans with useful employment and the opportunity to acquire farms or homes within the state at a low rate of interest and on easy long time payments, every cent to be repaid by the veteran with interest.

Under the provisions of the provisions of the veterans' farm and home purchase act any qualified California veteran desiring to secure a farm or a home anywhere within the state, may make his selection and submit it to the veterans' welfare board for approval. If suitable, this property must then be appraised by a banker in the community where the site is chosen, together with an inheritance tax appraiser and at least two members of the veterans' welfare board. If the farm does not exceed $7,500 or the home $5,000 in value, the veterans' welfare board may then purchase the farm or home in behalf of the state at the appraised valuation.

Resold to Veteran

The state then resells the farm or home to the veteran at a price not to exceed the actual cost. This resale is made to him on terms agreed upon between the state and the applicant.

The veteran is required to make an initial payment to the state of at least 5 per cent on a home, and 10 per cent on a farm, the balance to be paid by him in easy installments covering a period of not to exceed forty years, and the deferred payments will bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. It further provides that he must take up his actual residence upon the property within six months after purchase.

Under the terms of the veterans' welfare act, which is an entirely separate act and looks to colonization and land settlement projects the state is authorized to purchase tracts of land for subdivision into farms, provides for irrigation, roads, schools and churches for settlement purposes. Under the terms of this act the farm is resold to the veteran at actual cost to the state, no allotments of land exceeding $15,000.

Disabled federal agricultural trainees, are given preference and are required to move on the allotment within six months. The title to the property in all instances remains in the state until all payments and interest are completed by the veteran.

Must Be Approved

The state legislature at its last session, for the purpose of carrying out the provisions of veterans' legislation given above, unanimously placed the veterans' welfare bond act, proposition 3, on the November ballot. In order to derive funds, however, it is necessary that this bond act No. 3, together with the veterans' validating act, No. 1, be approved by the people November 7th. The bonds provided for in these acts are to mature not later than forty years from date of issuance and will bear interest at a rate to be determined by the veteran's welfare finance committee but in no case exceeding 6 per cent per annum. Bonds are not issued for sale even though authorized November 7th by the people, until there is an actual need for the moneys to be derived from them, and before any bonds under these acts can be sold, that issue must be approved by the veterans' welfare finance committee consisting of the governor, chairman of the veteran's welfare boar, state controller, state treasurer and chairman of the board of control. All act on this committee without compensation.

These acts are distinguishable from nearly all soldier bonus legislation passed in some twenty other states in that they are designed to operate without any expense or cost whatever to the state of California. There is nothing about them in the nature of a bonus, gift or gratuity of any kind. The money is loaned on ample security and every cent is to be repaid by the veteran to the state, with interest, and in addition thereto, all administrative expenses. The American legion submitted the acts contained in the veterans' welfare legislation to the last session of the state legislature upon the basis that they would not increase state tax burdens and would build up the resources of California, at the same time benefitting its worthy and deserving veterans.

Propositions 1 and 3, without expense to the state, enable California veterans to become home-owning and farm owning citizens, taxpayers, self-respecting and independent. It promotes a higher type of citizenship by making more persons the owners of the land which they till or the homes in which they live. History shows that state is strongest and least apt to suffer from internal agitation which has the greatest number of its citizens owning the farms and homes upon which they live. It promotes and develops the agricultural interest of the state and increases its prosperity through the erection of new homes and the cultivation of vast and fertile undeveloped acreage by subdividing them into small intensively cultivated farms, and by so doing, adds to the taxable wealth of California many millions of dollars.

LAW'S FRIENDS ARE NEEDED IN POWER, SAYS SPEAKER

Friend W. Richardson Defends His Dry Record; Tells Economy Program

The following is from the Riverside Enterprise:

"Law enforcement should be in the hands of the friends of the law," said Friend William Richardson last night, addressing 100 editors and friends of the Southern California Editorial association, who were the guests of the Southern California Fair association at the Glenwood Mission Inn. He was defending his program for a "dry" California, as a part of a consistent "dry" record for many years. "There have been too many men in law enforcement positions in California who were not friendly to the laws they were sworn to enforce," he continued.

The Republican candidate for governor went a little farther last night than he has in former speeches and told how he proposes to bring about the economy in state government which he made his dominant issue in the primary campaign this year. He announced it as his program to secure three of the best business men of California to act on the state board of control, to put men on the state highway commission who know something about highway construction and who will insure the public 100 cents' worth of return for every dollar's worth of expenditure. Finally, he announced it as his intention to call into conference, one at a time, every head of a state department, announce to each gentleman that it is proposed to have economy and business efficiency, ask for cooperation and to retire from public service such individuals as cannot enter such a plan of operations with a helpful spirit of cooperation.

Praises Country Newspapers

The speaker commended the country press for what it accomplished in California during the recent primary. He detailed his well-laid plans to secure this country support, which, in turn, forced the city support. He called attention to the fact that the Republican newspapers are a unit in this issue and that at least two-thirds of the country newspapers are supporting his candidacy, that the battles of the past should be forgotten and that the real contest is the one just ahead.

Printing Office Work Told

Friend Richardson told of experiences in the state printing office, when foremen receiving $700 per month were entirely eliminated and better results secured. He suggests that similar paring in the state government may well be possible. "My election as governor is not important," he said, in closing," but it is important that the government of California should be free from any self-appointed bosses and designing politicians." He stated that he has made no promises of jobs, that his program will be one purely of insistence of a full day's work for a full day's pay in the affairs of California and the appointment of men to positions because of their fitness and not for political reasons.

HORNETS ARE ORGANIZED

Sam, the colored driver of an ox team, saw a little lizard crawling up a tree, according to a story whose origin is not given. He flourished his long whip and very definitely snapped off the lizard's head. Further along the road, with skilful precision, he picked a horsefly off the fence with the same weapon. His skill as a marksman was next exhibited on a chipmunk that showed its head above the ground.

The white man said: Sam, take a crack at that," pointing to a hornets' nest. Sam grinned and replied: "No, suh, no, suh, boss; them fellahs is awganized."

Pike Seizes Toe of Barefoot Fisherman

NILES, Mich.—Arthur Gregg, youthful fisherman of Niles, accounted for four deeply lacerated toes by explaining that a three-foot pike seized them as they dangled in the water from a boat in which he was fishing. He was pulling a bluegill in past by his bare foot when the pike lunged at the smaller fish, seized Gregg's toes, and clung to them until they were jerked out of the water, he said.

If you send in $5.00 for 5 packages of Yeastolax and the judges award you the first prize you will receive the Big Prize of $2000.00. Should your list be judged as the second best you would receive $1000.00; and so on down the list. Remember, there are twenty prizes offered, as shown. All the opportunity one could desire. HONOLULU—Honolulu is preparing for a big commercial congress to be held here this fall. Representatives from chambers of commerce and universities thruout the United States and all countries bordering on the Pacific are expected to attend. The purpose of the congress will be to better understanding on the Pacific. It is being sponsored by the Pan-Pacific Union. Alexander Hume Ford, secretary of the Pan-Pacific union, has just returned from a 30,000-mile trip throughout the United States, where he has been promoting the Commercial congress. He leaves for Japan and China in several days to create interest there. Governor Wallace R. Farrington of Hawaii is behind the movement here. Several thousand delegates are expected to meet in Honolulu at the Commercial congress.

Siberia Is Hostile As Japs Evacuate

TOKIO—Since the first Japanese troops began to evacuate Siberia on August 26 there has been a steady stream of Japanese and Korean residents out of the former occupied zone. The hostility toward themselves that the Japanese incurred by prolonged occupation of Siberia leaves no other course open to them. Another child of the War Office went wrong, and Japanese business must suffer.

Approximately 15,000 Japanese and Koreans are returning to Japan or going to Manchuria rather than become commercial and social outcasts with the return of unhampered Russian rule. Only a few of the larger Japanese firms will remain in Siberia, and these will retain only branches in Vladivostok. The Bank of Chosen will be the only bank to stay.

Customers of Music Shop Getting Treat

Customers of the Kenny Music Shop, 203 North Brand boulevard, are being given a real treat with each purchase of a 75-cent phonograph record or more. According to the plan, the customer is given a ticket which is worth 65 cents in trade at the various concessions at Venice.

"It is just a way to get better acquainted with our customers," says W. A. Kenny in speaking of the matter.

LAYMAN TO MINISTRY

The Boston Transcript tells of a young country minister, noted for his jollity, who was dining at a farm house one Sunday and when his plate of roast chicken was passed to him he remarked facetiously, "Well, here's where the chicken enters the ministry."

"Hope it does better there than it did in lay work," rejoined the bright boy of the family.

Cat and Pigeon in Store Are Friends

BIRMINGHAM, Ala.—Is the dawn of the much-heralded era when "the lion and the lamb shall lie down together" about due?

Alfonso Lobue, proprietor of a grocery store here, has two pets—a lone kitten, two-thirds grown, and a young pigeon, fully feathered.

The customer in Alfonso's is apt to have his attention directed to the pigeon mincing daintily along the floor. Next his horrified gaze rests upon kitty's figure, crouching, tense muscled, his basilisk eyes gleaming in anticipation, as he waits in ambush.

There is the sudden rush of a furry body flung through the air; a half-stifled, indignant "squawk" and throaty mumblings in pigeon talk.

But—there is no bloodshed, no flying of feathers, as the pigeon goes down before kitty's assault. Instead, the pigeon rights itself; his sharp beak digs with unbelievable rapidity into kitty's nose, ears and head. Kitty backs off, massages a stinging nose with one paw, tenses his body, and springs again.

But this time the pigeon is ready; his indignant, throaty mumblings have become a accelerated. He meets the rush head on, and they go down together, kitty clasping the pigeon in his front paws, sometimes even gently closing his mouth over his playmate's head or neck; but there has never been the sickening "crunch" that would spell the end of the pigeon's earthly career.

GLASS OF SALTS CLEANS KIDNEYS

If your Back hurts or Bladder bothers you, drink lots of water.

When your kidneys hurt and your back feels sore, don't get scared and proceed to load your stomach with a lot of drugs that excite the kidneys and irritate the entire urinary tract. Keep your kidneys clean like you keep your bowels clean, by flushing them with a mild, harmless salts which helps to remove the body's urinous waste and stimulate them to their normal activity. The function of the kidneys is to filter the blood. In twenty-four hours they strain from it 500 grains of acid and waste, so we can readily understand the vital importance of keeping the kidneys active.

Drink lots of water—you can't drink too much; also get from any pharmacist about four ounces of Jad Salts; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast each morning for a few days and your kidneys may then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to clean and stimulate clogged kidneys; also to neutralize the acids in urine so it is no longer a source of irritation, thus often ending bladder weakness.

Jad Salts is inexpensive; cannot injure; makes a delightful effervescent lithia water drink, which everyone should take now and then to help keep their kidneys clean and active. Try this; also keep up the water drinking, and no doubt you will wonder what became of your kidney trouble and backache.—Advertisement.

TELLS CHINESE OF ELEVEN RULES TO USE IN U. S.

Warns Students to Maintain 'Balanced Life' to Gain Right Social Poise

By EDNA LEE BOOKER
For International News Service.

SHANGHAI. — Eleven recommendations for the Chinese student who is going to America to complete his education have been issued by Dr. Y. Y. Tsu, general secretary of the Chinese Students' Christian association of North America, upon his arrival in Shanghai recently.

The practical suggestions, which will help the student adapt himself to the ways of a strange land, are as follows:

1. To maintain a balanced life, devote some portion of one's time to social intercourse, but not to such an extent as to interfere with one's studies, which are of one's primary concern.

2. Cultivate friendly association with some American students or other people of culture. It affords one an opportunity to get an insight into real American life and to know its good and bad points. It may be difficult to start the relationship because of racial differences, but perseverance and one's own good points win out.

Get Letters, Tips

3. Get introductory letters from American friends before leaving China. They are valuable for entree into American homes.

4. Knowledge of good literature, athletics, college activities, membership in a church, etc., are good mediums of social intercourse.

5. The Christian religion forms a large and important part in American life, and so it is worth while for one to know something about it, if one really wants to get into the spirit of America.

6. Knowledge of etiquette and social usage is essential.

7. Cultivate the spirit of loyalty, and give support to any worthy cause or enterprise that originates among our own students.

8. Be prepared to furnish accurate information about China, for you are likely to be asked many questions by the American people.

9. The American people are sociable, of good humor and fond of good jokes. To enjoy their company and to have one's company enjoyed by them one should show the same spirit.

Yes, Need Money

10. Smaller colleges are to be preferred to the larger ones, as the former afford more opportunities for social intercourse with American people.

11. It is inadvisable for Chinese students to go to America without adequate means of support and expect to work their way through college, unless employment in America is assured before hand through the help of relatives in business in America or other influential friends. The bitter experience of the majority of Chinese students who have gone to America without adequate means of support makes this caution necessary.

GREAT WATER POWER

Norway is believed to have the greatest available supply of water power in Europe, 7,500,000 horsepower, while Sweden has 7,000,000 horsepower available nine months in each year.

Japanese Protest Hawaiian Schools

HONOLULU.—There is no protest on the part of the Chinese community here against the proposed changes in foreign language schools rearranging their courses of study to conform more with American standards and ideals. The attitude of the Chinese is in marked contrast to that of the Japanese community and press, which are protesting bitterly against the limitations placed upon the Japanese language schools in recommendations suggested by a joint committee of Americans and Japanese. The Japanese press has accused American members of the joint committee of using coercion which forced the Japanese to submit to their recommendations.

In a letter to MacCaughey on the foreign language school situation, Governor Wallace R. Farrington makes the following declarations:

"American Territory"

"This is an American territory, and the solution of our problems must always be reached along American lines. There can be no divided allegiance so far as American citizens are concerned in their relation to the American public school, maintained for the instruction of our American children and for the development of the best American ideals in morals and government.

"It should be clearly understood that there can be no division of allegiance among the children who are expected to assume the responsibilities as well as the privileges of American citizenship."

BLIND STENOS IN DEMAND

Blind stenographers are being generally employed in Germany. They work with three different types of apparatus. One is the usual typewriter on which they learn to write directly from dictation. Another machine enables them to write shorthand by a specially devised mechanical means. The third is a sort of dictaphone.

Look Young! Bring Back Its Natural Color, Gloss and Attractiveness

Common garden sage brewed into a heavy tea with sulphur added, will turn gray, streaked and faded hair beautifully dark and luxuriant. Just a few applications will prove a revelation if your hair is fading, streaked or gray. Mixing the Sage Tea and Sulphur recipe at home, though, is troublesome. An easier way is to get a bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound at any drug store all ready for use. This is the old-time recipe improved by the addition of other ingredients.

While wispy, gray, faded hair is not sinful, we all desire to retain our youthful appearance and attractiveness. By darkening your hair with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound, no one can tell, because it does it so naturally, so evenly. You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning all gray hairs have disappeared, and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully dark, glossy, soft and luxuriant.—Advertisement.

TROJAN SQUAD TO BATTLE ARIZONA ON SATURDAY

Official Opening of Football Season at Bovard Field; Some Comparisons

Southern California football-dom is all set for the official opening of the 1922 gridiron season next Saturday, the main event of which will be the game at Bovard Field between Gloomy Gus Henderson's U. S. C. Trojans and the University of Arizona, more familiarly known as the "Wildcats." Although several contests have already been played between local college teams, none of them have been what could be termed "battles" from a standpoint of good football.

In the squad which will appear wearing the uniforms of the Arizona institution the ten or twelve thousand grid followers who will trek to the U. S. C. campus Saturday will gaze upon the strongest eleven that has ever been imported from the border state.

With a forward wall averaging more than 180 pounds to a man from end to end, not to mention an extremely versatile and fast backfield combination, the invaders promise a big surprise for the Cardinal and Gold school's followers.

Big Fellow Is Star

"Fat" Darkley, a giant 205 pound bunch of muscles, is the outstanding star of the line, his position being left guard. He will be assisted in the opposite side of the center position by Tutt, a beefy man who is reported fast on his feet and a good charger. Witcen, tipping the beam at 180 pounds, holds down the center berth, while the men who are to play opposite "Swede" Anderson and Cummings Saturday have been announced as Clarke and Lafhelle. Each of these huskies weighs an even 185 pounds.

On the flanks Henderson will probably find the greatest "joy-killers" of the fray. McClellan and Jacobson are the gents who are scheduled to stop opposing backs in their tracks, block kicks, catch forward passes and do everything that a pair of good ends should.

Strong Backfield

The backfield will be well taken care of with McMillan at quarter, Gilliland and Thomas at halves and Hobbs, full. All are fairly sure of gaining ground, while McMillan is regarded as one of the smartest signal barkers who ever played on a Wildcat eleven. Fullback Hobbs, who will do all the punting for the visitors, is doped to outkick the Trojan punters on an average of ten yards to a boot.

Although it is always a guess as to who will appear in Henderson's lineup, the following is a fair estimate: Ends, Milton and Pythian; tackles, Anderson and Cunningham; guards, Lindley and Newman; center, Captain Leo Calland; quarter, Dolley; halves, Kincaid and Baker; full, Tiernan.

Resumes Training

Jess Willard, former champion heavyweight boxer of the world and who stated several months ago his intention of getting into condition for a return match with Jack Dempsey, resumed training at his quarters in Hollywood today after a few weeks' rest, during which time he was appearing in a feature act with a Pacific coast vaudeville circuit. Willard, who is being managed by Gene Doyle in his efforts to regain his former prestige in the fistic art, has never given up hope of obtaining a second match with his conqueror and is bent on training harder than ever during the next month. With all the pressure that is being brought to bear on Dempsey at this time, due to the recent good showings of Battling Siki, Harry Wills and others, it is more than likely that the giant Kansas will be granted a bout in the near future.

Local Football Team Defeated by Oneonta

Coach Normal C. Hayhurst's Glendale high school football team lost its first contest of the season yesterday afternoon in a practice game played on the local gridiron against the Oneonta Military academy squad. The final score was 14 to 0, the embryo soldiers pushing the oval over the goal line in both the first and last halves.

From the start it was evident that Hayhurst had underestimated his heavier opponents by opening the game with a team composed practically entirely of second-string men. He soon recognized his error, however, although it was too late to stave off defeat. The tilt will have no bearing on the league status of the local aggregation. The first league contest will be played at Covina one week from today.

The showing of the Red and Black squad throughout the game was far from the usual form displayed by G. U. H. S. tanbark athletes, and Coach Hayhurst is hoping that his men have rid themselves of their bad streak. Captain Fred Stofft, Horatio Butts, "Fat" Ryan and Clifton Clouse were the stars of the local eleven.

RABBIT PUNCH HAS A FATAL KICK : : By WOOD COWAN

BY JUST GIVIN' HIM A LITTLE TAP AT THE BASE OF HIS SKULL IT'LL PUT HIM OUT OF HIS MISERY
"THE 'RABBIT PUNCH' IS A SHORT JAB TO THE BACK OF THE NECK OR BASE OF THE SKULL DELIVERED WHEN AT CLOSE QUARTERS USUALLY WHEN A BOXER IS TIRED AND HOLDING—
HUNTERS HAVE LONG KNOWN THIS SECRET, IT IS SURE DEATH TO A RABBIT AND ALSO TO MAN IF APPLIED WITH FORCE ENOUGH BEHIND IT—
IT WAS A WELL DIRECTED 'RABBIT PUNCH' THAT DEMPSEY EMPLOYED TO FINISH TOUGH BILL BRENNAN IN THEIR LAST FIGHT AT MADISON SQUARE GARDEN
WOOD COWAN

Hunters have long known the trick of killing a rabbit by holding it suspended by its hind legs and striking it a blow at the base of the skull.

It is sure death to the rabbit, and the same blow dealt a man with sufficient force will produce the same result. And unless something is done a fatality is going to occur from this "rabbit punch" in the squared circle because of the negligence of state commissions in not outlawing this unsportsmanlike wallop.

More boxers are employing the "rabbit punch" today than ever before. This "punch" is a short jab to the back of the neck, anywhere from the base of the skull down to the seventh vertebra. It directly affects the spinal cord. Even a light blow will produce a headache. The blow is most often given in a clinch and usually when a tired boxer is hanging on. In this condition the recipient is least able to throw it off.

This blow can be sneaked over unnoticed by the referee. It is mighty unsportsmanlike to hit even an opponent who is breaking the rule of boxing by so doing from the back.

Dempsey used this blow effectively against both Carpentier and Bill Brennan. It was the last blow struck in the latter match at Madison Square Garden and it put the tough Brennan down to stay.

Whether the "rabbit punch" has ever caused a fatality in the ring is unknown to me. But, unless some quick action is taken, the ever increasing and more efficient use of this punch is going to kill some pugilist.

Above all, the "rabbit punch" is such an unsportsmanlike trick that this blow has no place in the categories of legal punches in pugilism.

The New Jersey state commission has already seen the danger and a ban has been put on both the "rabbit punch" and the "kidney punch." Other boards, or authorities, should follow New Jersey's timely example before fatality is caused by its use and boxing gets another black eye.

TIGERS LOSE AGAIN IN SECOND GAME OF 14 INNINGS

Wild-Eyed Week Comes to Finish Season; Bay City Squad Wins Another

Duplicating their "stuff" of Tuesday, the Los Angeles baseball team yesterday walloped the skidding Vernon Tigers for the second time this week in fourteen innings, the final score this time being 5 to 4. If Tuesday's contest was as good as any of the season then yesterday's was the best of the year. First, the Angels amassed a lead of three runs, only to have it tied up when Dumovich was chased to the showers in the seventh. The count remained at a standstill until the first part of the thirteenth when Red Smith trotted home on Hannah's single after he had doubled to right.

At this stage things looked blue for the Seraphs and the spectators started moving toward the gates. But most of them halted in their footsteps as Twombly opened up the home half with a snappy single. The best offering of Dixie Carroll, who subsequently became the hero of the game, was a sacrifice moving the runner up to second. McCabe then advanced him to third on an infield out, while "old reliable" Charley Deal brought in the tying marker with a screeching two-bagger to the left field fence.

Out of Pennant Race

Then the fourteenth, in which Carroll slapped out his single that practically put the leaderless Tigers out of the Coast league pennant race. Dell started things by walking McAuley. McQuade, who had replaced Dumovich on the mound in the seventh, then reached first on a slow bunt along the first base foul line. Wheezer then became rattled to such an extent that Twombly was walked, putting three men on bases and none down. It was all over but the shouting, Carroll smacked the first ball pitched for the death-dealing single which sent the cash customers home to their waiting dinners.

Dell pitched a masterly ball throughout, allowing but seven hits while his adversaries were nicked for twice that number. From the first to the thirteenth the Angels made but one hit, which included nine innings of hitless baseball. Babe Twombly was again the star at bat for the Angels, rapping out three hits in six trips, while "Truck" Hannah poled four out of six for the Bengals.

Seals Win Again

Up north San Francisco was doing its part in cinching the 1922 gonfalon, trimming the Oaks 5 to 3 in the second contest of the "Crucial" series in the Bay City. Each team obtained the same number of hits, the sensational fielding of the Seals' inner defense keeping the score down time and time again.

"Dots" Miller's charges are now two and one-half games to the good over Vernon, and with but four more games to be played there is little or no chance for the southerners to nose out the Seals.

Home Run Honors

Paul Strand, the rangy Salt Lake outfielder who has been leading in the Coast league batting averages for several months, is also certain of heading the circuit for home-run honors for the season. To date, he has connected for a total of twenty-eight "round trips," while Hughie High of Portland, his nearest rival, has twenty-four to his credit. Heinie Sand is third with twenty-one, while fourth place is divided up into thirds, with Art Griggs of the Angels, Lewis of Salt Lake and Poole of Portland in the triple tie.

FRANCE HAS HOPES OF TAKING HONOR AT OLYMPICS

Petty Fight Over Control May Spoil Chances of United States

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—France apparently has a sneaking notion that she has a good chance to win the Olympic championship in 1924.

Homer Baker, one of America's best runners, who is now director of athletics in the Canal Zone, was in Paris recently and he applied for the position of coach of the French-Olympic team. He was told politely that France was going to have a Fenchman in charge of her team, so that Americans could not take the credit away from a French victory with a comeback that an American had coached them. Baker says that France has a couple of good young runners coming up and one good hurdler.

Sweden, according to reports, has been working a year with the Olympics in mind and after the present summer season will be ready to put a great team in the field, with two more years for further improvement. Sweden on the showing made at Antwerp will be America's most dangerous rival and a very formidable opponent.

Make Better Marks

Improvement shown on field athletics in the Scandinavian countries was shown recently when Huff, a Norwegian, cleared 13 feet 6 inches in the pole vault and established a new world's record. The pole vault has always been considered Uncle Sam's pet little event.

While all of the European nations are actively at work on the development of a 1924 Olympic team the United States is all tangled up in a petty political fight over the management and selection of the team.

Down at the bottom of the fight is a controversy between the Y. M. C. A., which seeks world-wide control of all sports, and the Amateur Athletic Union, which has made some mistakes in the past, but which has been generally successful on a very difficult job.

The opinion seems to prevail that all required is to get heads together about March 1, 1924, pick a team off the record books and hunt for a boat.

Albert Hill, the veteran British middle distance runner, who was a double winner at the last Olympic games, is reported to have changed his mind about coming over for the big American indoor meets this winter. He says he would have accepted an invitation last year, but he has definitely and finally retired.

A. E. Edwards, the colored sprinter, who chased the American sprinters to the wire in Antwerp, is planning to come, over, however, and Ed Mountain, the present British half-mile champion and the world's record holder for 500 meters, may come with him.

Transfer Lee King and Frank O'Doul

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Frank O'Doul, left handed pitcher, has been transferred from the New York Yanks to the Boston Red Sox, and Outfielder Lee King, from the New York Giants, to the Toledo American association club. O'Doul came to the Yankees from the San Francisco club of the Pacific Coast league.

Barnstorming Tour of Stars Starting

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Oct. 13.—The barnstorming tour of Babe Ruth and Bob Meusel, Yankee stars, opens today at Perry, Ia., and closes October 31 at El Paso, Texas, after taking in a number of towns in the middle west and southwest, according to announcement of the itinerary today by L. J. Galbreath, of Kansas City, in charge of the routing.

Efforts will be made to secure Judge Landis' consent to an extension of the time limit to include exhibitions in Mexico, it was announced.

Necklines are varied, some are square, others retain the oval or bateau, and some evening models have the V decolletage.

SPORTS CHATTER

PACIFIC SPORTS SERVICE

The victory of Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., in the women's golf championship of the United States once more this year emphasizes the great strides in sports made by young men and women, hardly more than children in age, who have won national titles this year. Miss Collett is nineteen years of age, the youngest woman to ever win a U. S. title in golf. The case if 17-year-old Helen Wills in tennis is another shining example, and Miss Gertrude Ederle, aged 15, U. S. swimming champion stands out as the youngest of her sex to win a national title.

It is not only in girls' endeavors, however, where youth has been pushing ahead. Jesse Sweetser and Gene Sarazen in the realms of golf are nothing more than boys, neither being 20 years of age. Vincent Richards of tennis fame is about 18 years of age and Pancho Villa of Manila, the new flyweight champion of the boxing arena is not 18 years of age. And there are others.

A "little world's series" of their own will be decided this year by the minor leagues. The St. Paul team, winner of the American Association pennant, and Baltimore, winner of the International league pennant, are scheduled to play a series and the winner will then travel to the Pacific coast and meet the winner of the Pacific coast league. These three leagues are the leaders of the minor leagues throughout the country, and the series first between two leading eastern minor league teams and the winner vs. the Pacific Coast league team will be one that will arouse genuine interest in baseball circles.

A post season inter-league series of this description was played in 1919 when the St. Paul team, winners of the American association that year played the Vernon team, winners of the Coast league. The series was a nine-game affair and Vernon won, taking five of the nine games played. This year, however, greater scope is lent to the series by the fact that the three leading minor leagues are participating.

It would seem by performances at this time, that when the 1924 Olympic games roll around this United States is going to have plenty of trouble on its hands in the track and field events. The recent world record breaking performances of Nurmi, the new Finnish wonder is the talk of the track world and now comes South Africa with a school boy sprinter who, unknown, comes out and wins the hundred yards in 9 4-5, and the "quarter" in 48 2-5, at the same meet. Both are remarkable performances.

When we look back to the last Olympics and realize that in the track events, the United States only actually won four of the events, it makes one think that other countries of the world are improving and that the day might be close at hand when this country will not be the winner of these great world championships.

The WORLD OVER

By FRANKLIN B. MORSE.

While intersectional football games have aroused plenty of interest in the past, Yale, Harvard and Princeton no longer will participate in any more of them, but will play only in their immediate territory. Thus the game this month between Princeton and Chicago universities will be the last time they will meet on the gridiron unless the "Big Three" recede from their present position. Chicago defeated Princeton in their game last season by a score of 9 to 0, so the Tigers will naturally want to clean their slate in the final clash. Their chances of doing so are not the brightest in the world.

How quickly an unthought of or unheard of element will inject itself with the suddenness of a thunderbolt is exemplified in the case of Battling Siki, who stepped out of oblivion into the glare of the limelight over the prostrate body of Georges Carpentier in a matter of mere minutes. There are few persons, as yet, who concede that the Senegalese fighter would have any chance against the champion, Jack Dempsey, but it shows the possibilities of some one who can do so looming up metaphorically over night.

The statement credited to "Little" Bill Johnston that he intends continuing playing tennis as long as his interest in it continues, means much for the game, for undoubtedly he is one of the foremost exponents of the art. In fact there are many followers of tennis who believe that he is the greatest player of all time for two out of three sets to a match. The fourth and fifth sets, however, are too much for the physique of this remarkable little player. It should be remembered that Johnson weighs only about 120 pounds, and the miracle is that this little bundle of nerves under control can put up the terrific battle of which he is capable. Given Tilden's big physique, there is no telling what prodigies of tennis Johnson could accomplish. At all events, while his strength lasts, Johnson has shown himself superior to Tilden in practically every match they have played.

Joseph Ropa was found lying on the railroad tracks at Chicago and turned over to the undertakers as dead. When he rose up in the coffin to argue the case with the undertaker he was arrested for disturbing the peace and fined $1 in court.

The Sport Crucible

By Davis J. Walsh
International News Service Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—Billy Miske and Tom Gibbons will be shooting at a heavy title tonight when they meet to a decision at Madison Square Garden and for this reason, amnng others, we look for one of the greatest heavyweight bouts of the year. Both are championship contenders.

Miske was beaten down in three rounds by Dempsey at Benton Harbor several years ago when a semi-cripple. But he is now bigger, stronger and better than the Miske who first came east years ago to tear Jack Dillon, Battlinig Levinsky and other near greats into human slithers. His is one of the most interesting comebacks in ring history.

Gibbons has lost only one fight in nine years and that one almost ruined a perfectly good reputation. He was out-slapped by Harry Greb, a ring freak, nere last year. Nothing strange about that, for Greb is likely to maul anyone in a limited engagement. But it left Gibbons' ability under a cloud. He must live that one down if he hopes to get anywhere. Likewise must Miske overcome local prejudice growing out of the Benton Harbor affair.

Therefore, tonight's entertainment should be no buck and wing.

NEW METHOD FOR PICKING COTTON IS DESCRIBED

Electrical Invention Would Revolutionize Industry; Cows Give Idea

MEMPHIS—An electrical cotton picker that promises to revolutionize the cotton industry and to place L. C. Stuckenborg near Eli Whitney, inventor of the cotton gin, in the Industrial Hall of Fame, has been developed and successfully demonstrated. Its invention is said to have resulted from Mr. Stuckenborg, who hails from Memphis, observing a number of trespassing cows licking cotton out of the bolls in a Tennessee cotton field.

As it happened, writes Miss M. Tevis, in St. Nicholas, he had long been working on the problem involved in substituting some form of mechanical labor for hand labor in the arduous task of cotton picking. He was struck by the neatness and dispatch with which the cow extracted the cotton; and in thinking it over he realized that this was owing to the nature of the cow's tongue, which is quite rough, being covered with projections composed of horny cuticle, so that its surface is very much like that of a rasp.

Pull Cotton Free

But though this observation gave him the initial idea for his invention, it took some fourteen years of patient experiment and endeavor before he brought it to completion. As it now stands, it consists essentially of two revolving brushes (which pluck the cotton lightly, but cleanly, from the open seed pod, or boll, as it is called) of a suction system, and of a set of electric motors, together with an electric generator and a switchboard, or "panel board."

It is the brushes, of course, which play the part of the rough and flexible tongue of the cow. They are enclosed in a small metal frame about as big as your two fists, and they revolve toward each other. When these are placed in contact with the cotton they instantly pull it free, without collecting any part of the boll or leaves of the plant, as a human picker is only too apt to do. Connected with the revolving brushes are flexible tubes known as "picker tubes," which carry the cotton by means of suction to the collecting bags, just as the dust and fluff picked up by a vacuum cleaner are carried to a collecting bag.

Just before the cotton drops into the bag it is cleaned by fanning with a blower. Each machine is mounted on a tractor whose engine provides the electric power to run the eight motors. One of these, which drives the brushes, is suspended about half way down the suction tube, while another provides the suction power and also operates the blower.

Explains in Detail

Miss Tevis goes on to say in detail:

"Each machine can pick eight rows in one passage through the field, and the man who operates it only needs a little training, such as can be acquired in a few days, in order to pick 400 pounds or more a day; whereas the hand picker averages only from seventy to 150 pounds a day, according to his strength, speed and skill. This greater rapidity in harvesting is particularly important in the case of cotton, since it is a crop which ripens gradually, instead of all at a time, like grain. There are three crops of the cotton, in fact, and the process of ripening requires some two months.

"For this reason the 'floating labor,' as we term the great hordes of seasonal laborers who follow the grain crops from south to north, is not available, and the cotton planter must depend on his hired hands, or on local labor, at best. The great disadvantage of this is that much of the cotton deteriorates in quality because of exposure to wind and dust, sun and rain. Weather-beaten cotton tends to lose its immaculate whiteness and smooth fluffiness, becoming soiled and matted together. Hence it brings a lower price than that which is picked as soon as the bolls have opened. Hand picking also tends to mat the fibers into humps; and because of this, the fibers are often 'gin cut,' which again lowers the quality, since the longer the fiber the better it is for spinning purposes, other things being equal."

Authorities estimate that only one-third of the cotton raised at present is harvested in prime condition, the remainder of the crop being more or less injured by delay in picking and by the admixture of dirt, leaves and other foreign articles, which hand picking involves.

Friday, 13th, Lucky Day for Postmaster

Born under the sign of "Lucky Thirteen," D. Ripley Jackson, Glendale's postmaster, has been watching the calendar for a week in anticipation of the arrival of today, Friday, Oceober 13.

The alarm clock at the Jackson home rang out a bit earlier this morning and according to reports Mr. Jackson opened up "his" postoffice shop on West Broadway witn a broader smile than ever.

During the morning no unusual good luck befell Mr. Jackson, but at noon time he was reported as "living in hopes."

Works to Improve Her Dance Rhythm

Emma Haig, popular dancer in the Music Box Revue, works to improve her dance rhythm.

Emma Haig says that she likes to cook because she can hum softly to herself while stirring her concoctions, and thus get the twofold benefit of wholesome home-cooked food as well as excellent training in perfect rhythm.

In this instance Miss Haig is putting her deft touch to a dish which her friends call chicken a la Haig. Here is the recipe, for those who may be tempted to give their palate a treat under the direction of the noted dancer.

"The chicken must first be cut up so that it will fit snugly in the kettle. Instead of putting water in the kettle to prevent the chicken from sticking to the bottom, I use vegetable fat generously (one of the good things about vegetable fat is that you can use it generously, with good results both to your digestion and your chicken), and roast the chicken just like a pot roast.

"Add salt, pepper, and onions (if you like them) and allow the chicken to roast slowly until it turns a rich brown. The most important part of the dish, to my taste at least, is the chicken gravy. This is prepared by mixing a cup of half milk and half water with a tablespoon of flour. Thorough stirring of the gravy in the kettle, after the chicken is removed, makes a thick tasty gravy. I suppose that I always stir my dishes longer than anyone else would, because I love the rhythmic swing, which I always accompany by the melody of my favorite song."

ROBINSON CRUSOE DID NOT DO SO!

Shipwrecked Sailors Receive Best of Treatment From South Sea Maids

HONOLULU—Shipwrecked on an isolated South Sea island inhabited by 150 beautiful women! Yo, ho, mates! Ahoy! ahoy!

Such was the fate of the crew of the "ill-fated" American schooner Henriette when she ran on a reef in the Ellice Islands, in the far South Seas, last July 27. The Henriette was bound for San Francisco from the Fiji islands, with a cargo of copra, when the wreck occurred.

Tangawa, the only habitable island in the Ellice group, is populated by 180 natives, of whom only twelve are men. The women, with the exception of a few of the older ones, are very beautiful, according to Captain J. A. T. Olsen. "We had a hard time breaking away, when the British motor ship Hauraki came to our rescue, on account of the shortage of men on the island," Olsen said.

Dined and Feted

For twenty days Captain Olsen and his crew, consisting of N. P. Bensen, first mate, 249 Allison street, San Francisco; Andres L. Johnson, 219 Stewart street, San Francisco; Joseph McCloud, negro cook, 719 Center street, Oakland; Robert Harmole, 1306 A street, Alameda; A. E. Hutchinson, seaman, Boston, Mass.; R. E. Hooper, seaman, England, and Karl Hansen, Sweden, were dined and feted. Dinners were given in their honor, brought to a conclusion with a hula-hula dance. "The chief of the tribe tendered the mate and me the use of his hut." Olsen said, "One of the chief's daughters, a beautiful girl, with great dark eyes and a lovely figure, was assigned to me as a servant. Another girl looked after the mate. Others of our crew were treated likewise, being put in grass huts and given girl and boy servants."

Heavy seas were running when the schooner Henriette struck the reef. She sank rapidly, and some difficulty was experienced in launching the lifeboats. After these were launched they would doubtless have been swamped if the natives had not come to their rescue in big outrigger canoes.

ACCEPTS UNDER PROTEST

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—E. F. Grable, president of the Maintenance of Ways Brotherhood, today telegraphed members of the United States railway labor board that his organization would accept the 2 cents an hour raise voted by the public group of the board "under protest."

COMPENSATION IS BOON TO WORKER SAYS OFFICIAL

Secretary of Labor Davis Favors Extending Plan; Some States Evade

By HARRY WARD
For International News Service.

WASHINGTON.—The toll exacted by industrial accidents in United States reaches appalling proportions. According to Secretary of Labor Davis, approximately 23,000 fatal injuries and 600,000 non-fatal injuries of over four weeks' disability are sustained by wage earners of the country each year. The cost of these accidents, he says, is still largely borne by the workers, though not to the same extent since the enactment of workmen's compensation laws.

"The first compensation law was enacted by Germany in 1884 as a part of Bismarck's social insurance program," said Secretary Davis. "Other countries quickly followed suit until today nearly all of the civilized nations have such laws upon their statute books. In the United States compensation legislation is of recent origin, the first permanent state laws being enacted in 1911. The idea, however, spread rapidly, forty-two states having enacted such legislation up to the present time."

Once Had to Sue

The labor secretary pointed out that under the old employers' liability system it was necessary for an employe in case of injury to sue his employer for damages. Damages, however, could be recovered only if the injury was due to the employer's fault or negligence.

Moreover, the employer always had available the three common-law defenses, viz., assumption of risk, fellow service and contributory negligence. Or, in other words, if the injury were due to an inherent risk in the industry or was caused by the act of a fellow employe, or if the injured worker himself was negligent no damage could be recovered. The new compensation system, with unimportant exceptions, abolishes the whole theory of negligence. The injured workman loses his right to sue, but in lieu thereof receives certain stated money and medical benefits irrespective of fault.

Eliminates Litigation

"The chief advantages of a compensation system over employers' liability," said Secretary Davis, "lie in the elimination of prolonged litigation, the assurance that definite benefits will be paid promptly and regularly and the abolition of ill-feeling engendered through lawsuits."

Secretary Davis believes that while workmen's compensation laws are a great improvement over the former employers' liability system, they are still far from adequate. In the first place, he points out, many employes are excluded entirely from the benefits of the acts. It is of no particular significance to an injured workman to know that the compensation law in his state has a high scale of benefits if his occupation does not come within the scope of the act.

"It is important, therefore," said Mr. Davis, "to ascertain just how many and what employes are covered by the various compensation laws. New Jersey is the only state which includes all employments. Every state except New Jersey exempts farm labor and domestic service. Twelve states limit their acts to so-called 'hazardous' employments, thereby excluding mercantile establishments, clerical occupations and the professions. Nineteen states exempt the small employers, those having fewer than a stipulated number of employes, ranging from three employes in five states to sixteen employes in Alabama.

"Interstate railroad and maritime employments are necessarily excluded because of federal legislation and constitutional limitations. Other exclusions in a number of states include public employes, casual labor and employments not conducted for gain, such as charitable and religious institutions."

Farming Hazardous Job

It is interesting to note that logging in Maine and coal mining in Tennessee—two highly hazardous industries—are also excluded. The reason for the almost universal exclusion of agriculture in the United States can hardly lie in the fact of its non-hazardous character. The opposition of the farming element no doubt explains it.

Secretary Davis believes that the exclusion of employments or employers on the ground of having a low hazard is indefensible.

"An injury received in a mercantile establishment may be just as severe and entail just as much economic distress as one received in a mine," said Secretary Davis. "And, furthermore, if an occupation is in fact only slightly hazardous the additional burden on society will be slight because of the very fact that accidents are infrequent in these exempted employments."

TREE COLORS OWN WOOD

A scheme for feeding silkworms a diet of coloring matter so as to have them spin threads of a certain shade has its counterpart in a method of coloring wood in the growing tree, devised by a German engineer. Various aniline dyes are used, the Industrial Digest explains, which do not poison the tree or affect its growth. The dye is injected into the roots and and the sap carries the coloring matter thruout the structure in forty-eight hours.

Dutch and American interests are giving the process attention.

CENTRAL AVENUE P.-T. A. IN MEET

Opening Session of Year Takes Place; Classes to Try for Honors

following, written by Miss Eva Daniels and dedicated to the Glendale federation:

THEN AND NOW

Years ago while standing near a school one day,
I overheard a group of women talking,
One said there's a meeting of the P.-T. A.
Sorry I can't attend, I'm going shopping;
At this another questioned, "What is this P.-T. A.?"
There's something about it in the papers almost every day.
It seems to me from what I see, the crowds—
And here she raised her brows—
Are not the kind I care to meet.
Do you not feel that way?
The woman thus addressed, of all the town considered best,
Answered with a dignity, the words I'll ne'er forget.

My dear, she said with kindly look,
The finest cover ne'er made a book,
The aristocracy I know is of the brain and not of show;
The P.-T. A. has sown the seeds
From which are gathered kindly deeds
And that was long ago.
Today, the P.-T. A. in every state
Stands like a monument so great, with deeds well done,
Famed is its name and famous, too,
The men and women whom with it grew,
In Glendale I shall name a few
Whose push and pull have put things through.

Known to fame and a kindly soul
Is this town's beloved Mrs. Charles H. Toll,
Dr. Jessie Russell made history in the work,
While Mrs. Eva Barton was never known to shirk.
There's Mr. Moyse and Mr. White and Mrs. Hutchinson,
Ever ready when called upon with work that was well done.
I'd like to name a hundred more, you, and you, and you,
But I said before I started I could only name a few.
Jnst one thought more if you'll agree,
Dear friends, I'll leave with you today,
'Tis this, I beg you'll stand by me
For the good of P.-T. A.

Chairmen of Committees

A representative of the California Veterans' Welfare committee also spoke in support of measures 1 and 3 to be voted on next month.

After a group of delightful vocal numbers by Miss Marie Oliver, Mrs. Reichard read the list of officers and chairmen of committees to serve the Central association during the year.

They are Mrs. D. F. Reichard, president; Mrs. J. H. Burris, vice-president; Mrs. E. S. Dodds, secretary; Mrs. L. H. Van Hoorebeke, treasurer; Mrs. Goodrich, historian; Mrs. J. H. Burris, finance; Miss Annie McIntyre, membership; Mrs. C. M. Taylor, visiting; Mrs. L. H. Thompson, courtesy; Mrs. W. P. Llewellyn, auditor and reception; Mrs. George Horne, phone.

Chinese Rail Men for Strong Union

PEKING.—China's railroad employes have become organized into a workers' syndicate and have staggered the government by their sudden determination to carry out certain policies. "Utilization of the Chinese railways, for purposes of civil war, must stop," they declare, and give notice to the military leaders that the syndicate's consent must first be obtained before troops can be transported. They have also attacked the employment of an American accountant on one of the roads for the purpose of protecting the American creditors and they demand the discharge of certain other foreign officials, engineers and otherwise.

In view of the recent troop concentrations north of Tientsin and the possibility of another interchieftain war with the usual injuries to the innocent bystander, the prospect of a general strike in opposition is a matter of some comfort. The first real strike in the history of the railroads began when the Peking-Kalgan workers walked out. They were followed by their Peking-Hankow brethren. Then the workers of the remaining roads threatened to join in and the high directors compromised in haste.

Jap 'New Woman' Is Warned in Letter

HONOLULU—Madame Tamaki Miura, Japanese prima donna, who has recently returned from a trip to Japan and has been singing in Honolulu, has received a threatening letter branding her a traitor to Japan. The letter was written in Japanese and is thought to have been inspired by a statement in which she referred to woman's status in Japan as one of serfdom and predicted that some day Japanese women would rise up against the tyrannical domination of the men.

COAL BOARD TO MEET

WASHINGTON, D. C., Oct. 13.—The federal commission created to make an extensive investigation into the coal industry in the United States will hold its first meeting here on October 18, Secretary Hoover announced today, following a cabinet meeting.

State Owned Grain Elevators Is Plan

TOPEKA, Kan. — State-owned grain elevators!

That's the new plan being "fathered" by Clyde M. Reed, chairman of the state public utilities commission.

Reed would establish big elevators in Wichita, Hutchinson, Salina, Great Bend, Wellington and other places.

The plan, it is said, will be checked up to the next legislature.

Farmers' organizations that are seeking better market facilities will be asked to get back of the plan.

Reed says:

"I believe there should be built in the wheat belt elevators with sufficient capacity to relieve the glut which now attends the marketing of every crop.

"These elevators should be public warehouses where the individual or the co-operative society could store grain and receive a certificate which would be collateral at the bank.

"There seems to be no other way but for the states to build and operate these elevators.

"Today, and this is true in some degree every year, the Kansas farmer is overwhelming the transportation facilities of this state—and they are excellent—with the demand for cars to remove the grain at a price that means a loss to him. This is largely involuntary.

"The farmer can't help it under our present system.

"But if the first big wheat movement was partly to nearby central storage places the present transportation facilities would suffice.

"On the average the Kansas wheat growers collectively lose from $15,000,000 to $25,000,000 a year from the marketing conditions which produce a glut on the market."

Sunday Baseball Is Stopped by Pastor

WASHINGTON, Kan. — The Rev. M. F. Cox, of this city, didn't like Sabbath baseball. Instead of preaching against it he organized a league of church teams.

They played midweek, regularly scheduled contests, and everybody, even the players, forgot about Sunday games.

HOG ISLAND SHIP YARD

Hog Island soon will be the flat field it was before Uncle Sam invested $270,000,000 there. Where once an army of 36,000 men were building high-class vessels there now is a detail of fifty men armed with oxyacetylene torches and other instruments with which the demolition of the gigantic ways and other equipment is being wrought. The work of dismantling the mammoth machinery of war is progressing at a rapid pace.

Twenty-five of the fifty huge ways, representing high engineering skill, are already down, and the general appearance of the yard is that of a tornado-swept place. It is expected that some large manufacturing or storage plant will be erected on Hog Island after the government has cleared it off.

Odd-Job Man Saves $8,000 for Charity

NEW YORK. — By mowing lawns in summer and tending furnaces in winter, always being general handy man for the well-to-do families in the Bergen section of Jersey City, old John Williams managed to leave $8,000 for churches and charities when he died.

John had no dissipations and very few expenses, yet it never occurred to anybody that this shabby old man, running errands for the cook, had an increasing bank balance.

He had a standing invitation for breakfast in the kitchen of one of the best families of Bentley avenue, so this meal cost him nothing. And his room cost him very little. For eight years he lived at No. 710 Communipaw avenue, where he paid Mrs. Helen Cronin $2 a week for his room.

John never took a day off. And he didn't buy clothes, because his patrons always had some they didn't want. His only recreation occurred every ten weeks, as regularly as the passage of time. He would knock on his landlady's door and announce that he had come to "talk philosophy."

SERVICE LOSS CUT

The cost of the mail service for the fiscal year of 1922 was $60,815,400.36 more than was received in revenues, according to the statement of expenditures and revenue receipts, made public by Postmaster General Work. This is a decrease of $96,702,287.75 from 1921, when the mail service was operated at a loss of $157,547,688.11.

During the fiscal year of 1922, the postoffice department collected in revenues $484,853,540.71, an increase of $21,362,266.01 over 1921, when the receipts were $463,491,274.70. The total cost for handling of the mails for the two periods, respectively, was $545,668,941.07, and $621,008,902.81. This was an increase of 4.61 per cent in revenues and a decrease of 12.13 per cent in expenditures.

Motor and travel coats tend to straight or flaring types with wide armholes and some raglan effects.

NEW YORK BANKER, 100 YEARS OLD, AIDED LINCOLN

National Panics Can't Occur Now, Declares Financier; Recalls Old Days

MORRISTOWN, N. J.—John A. Stewart, chairman of the board of trustees of the United States company of New York, America's oldest banker, celebrated his one-hundredth birthday anniversary here at his home recently.

Mr. Stewart, who was one of Lincoln's closest advisers in the darkest periods of the Civil war, who came to the rescue of Grover Cleveland in 1894, when the government's gold reserve was dangerously depleted, and who was president pro tempore of Princeton university for the two years following Woodrow Wilson's election as governor of New Jersey, does not attribute his long active life to any particular habit of living.

Barring a slight impairment of hearing, Mr. Stewart is in perfect physical condition. His mind is bright and alert. He carries the weight of years with a serene outlook on life, and an abiding faith in the ideals and sympathy in the welfare of his fellowmen.

Instead of yielding to the retirement of country life, he prefers the stimulus of active trust company work because of its opportunities for service and the satisfaction of discharging his duties.

Saw Andrew Jackson

Mr. Stewart said that the first president of the United States he saw was Andrew Jackson, who delivered an address at the city hall when he was a boy. He recalled vividly the great fire which almost destroyed New York in 1835.

Mr. Stewart said that the biggest changes have taken place in the conduct of elections and the administration of government, changes that correspond to the physical development of the country during the last half-century. Mr. Stewart was a member of the famous committee of seventy, which was organized in 1871 to reform civic conditions in New York.

"There has been a direct moral improvement in politics since the middle of the last century," he declared. "A recurrence of a scandal like the Tweed ring dominance in New York city would now be impossible.

"The first financial panic occurred in 1837, two years after the great fire. I was then still a boy. The next panic occurred in 1857, when I was an officer of the United States Trust company. Such panics as that, and those of 1873, 1893 and 1907, are impossible now.

"These were virtually national disasters. The state and national banking acts have helped to reduce those old evils, but the establishment of the federal reserve board was the most potent factor. The board and its various governors well merit the confidence of the bankers and the public at large.

Abraham Lincoln Greatest Man

"I think that Abraham Lincoln was not only the greatest American, but the greatest man of comparatively modern times. He was broad, he was courageous and unselfish, and, in addition to that, was one of the most just men I have ever known. I had dinner with him at the White House and spent that evening with him in the library. It was the most enjoyable and memorable evening that I have ever passed. This was only a few days before he was assassinated."

Mr. Stewart was born on August 26, 1822, in Fulton street, New York city, when the present Wall street was dotted with green meadows. He has one brother, Rear Admiral Edwin Stewart, retired, for years paymaster general of the United States navy, who is now in his eighty-fourth year. Three sisters died many years ago.

After attending public schools in New York city, Mr. Stewart took the literary and scientific course at Columbia. After a few years at engineering, Mr. Stewart was appointed clerk of the board of education in New York city, and in 1850, became actuary of the United States Life Insurance company. When the United States Trust company of New York was organized in 1853, as the first American trust company chartered exclusively to render fiduciary service, Mr. Stewart became secretary of the company. When Joseph Lawrence, first president, resigned in 1865, because of ill health, Mr. Stewart was elected president, then being 43 years of age.

In 1902, Mr. Stewart resigned the presidency and became chairman of the board, an office which he has since held.

Next to the United States Trust company of New York, Mr. Stewart's chief interest has been centered in Princeton university, of which he has been a trustee and counselor for over fifty years.

ESCAPE BURNING SHIP BY SWIMMING UNDER WATER

Professor Edwin Kammerer, of Princeton University, his wife, son and daughter, only surviving cabin passengers of the steamer Villa France that exploded and sunk last June, returned to New York from South America with the harrowing tale of their experiences. They were awakened by the sound of an explosion, to find that their ship was a mass of flames. Gasoline had exploded, and the water all around the ship covered on the surface with flaming gasoline, offered no means of escape. Finally, an open space in the flames was found and all four, excellent swimmers, dived in and swam under water for a distance of about 200 feet from the ship. Natives helped the Kammerer family ashore and housed them until relief could be sent.

together the many notes he took on the trip.

Best Known City

"Glendale is the best known city on the map," he declared. Speaking of the Rotary singing here, he declared that other clubs that he visited don't do as well. He also explained that he had called a meeting of Rotary members on the ship both going over and coming back.

"It rained in all of the countries we visited except Italy," he declared, "where it was hot as to sunshine and politics.

"The world war would never have happened if Rotary had started fifteen years ago. The others haven't the real Rotary spirit yet."

He told of his visit to Rotary meetings in London, and of the work that the club is doing in the way of giving employment to the soldiers.

In a brief way he covered his trip to the battlefields, declaring that he could not see that much had been done in the way of cleaning the battlefields except in Belgium.

He was presented with a wonderful bouquet of flowers from his fellow Rotarians as a mark of esteem and a sign of welcome, as they expressed it.

Group Three Affair

The program yesterday was given by group three, of which Edward Hewitt is chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Paul Carson "brought down the house" when they entertained the gathering. Mr. Carson entertained at the piano while Mrs. Carson whistled a number of popular melodies for the men.

France Henry had the members laughing with his Scotch songs, of which he sang quite a number, asking the members to join with him.

Open Forum Will Instruct In Measures

Glendale women voters are to be invited to attend an Open Forum Tuesday, October 31, held under the auspices of the legislative section of the Tuesday Afternoon club in the club headquarters in the Masonic temple.

The Open Forum idea was developed yesterday afternoon at the first meeting of the Legislative Section at the home of the curator, Mrs. Beniamin Holbrook at 426 West Harvard street.

Mrs. Holbrook first spoke of the forum idea and Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson spoke of the need of arousing the women voters from their indifference to the making of the laws of the state and nation.

At the Open Forum October 31 discussion will be heard on the Wright bill, the Veterans' aid, the Water and Power act and the tax initiative. Speakers will be heard on both sides of the questions, each speaker being allowed ten minutes.

The next meeting of the Legislative section will be with Mrs. C. E. Hutchinson, 246 North Orange street, October 18.

if I was coming back to finish my days in my native country. I answered them, "Had they visited California, they would not ask me that question, that in July I experienced as cold rainy weather as our usual California winters. White frost twice in July. Give me the glorious sunshine of Southern California.

"In St. Pie, my native town, I found only five of my age left. The little children of my young manhood are the old people of today and act and appear much older than I. They were all surprised to see me so well preserved. I told them that I attributed it to my better habits, that they were all burning their money and their health with their tobacco, and booze; that I had never used either. By the way, when I left Canada, few young men used the weed, and they all had a rosy complexion. Today the contrast is very visible. They all smoke. They are pale, nervous cigaret fiends. How dearly they are paying for their habits.

"When I landed in Detroit, I was attracted by the A. B. C. on every corner of the business district. That stands for, 'Always be careful.' Why not adopt a slogan of our own in Glendale for the same purpose? C. A. A., 'Cautiousness avoids accidents'.

"In Chicago I found the weather extremely hot. I visited Dominique LeBlanc, another third cousin, who is manager of the Griffin Car Wheel company, and who visits California every year, and was my guest last winter. He, like many of my friends there, came to my hotel with their autos, showed me Chicago by daylight and feasted me at night at their homes and clubs — millionaire clubs at that.

"At Kansas City and Springfield, Mo., I had another ten days of the same kind of times; also at Howard, Kan. I rode in autos so much that I had sore feet and went to Excelsior Springs for a week's rest on a water diet—mineral waters of untold virtues. On my return I stopped over at the Grand Canyon. To an artistic eye the grandeur is beyond description.

"Everywhere I went I registered our slogan, 'Glendale Calif., the fastest growing city in the United States," which attracted much attention.

"Eight weeks ago I met with the accident of fracturing two ribs which I still feel the effects of.

"On seeing my card, 'Napoleon's Retreat,' they all imagined it was a hotel or sanitarium. I told them that in this land of flowers, we give our homes a name, and that mine was as big a one as I could think of.

"One of my old acquaintances, not recognizing me, in giving me the news, informed me that old Napoleon LeBlanc had died years ago. Another told of my being a drinking man. I answered them that they had me badly mixed up. That I had never had any experiences in dying or getting intoxicated; that I had never used liquor nor tobacco; that I thought too much of my honor, health and my money to use it that way; that they had another guess coming.

"The strike so demoralized the Frisco railroad that at one place the train was switched off and left us there two hours. At Springfield I waited for the 8 a. m. train until 3 p. m. They could not get the engine to pull the train. Near Toronto two of our coaches derailed but no casualties occurred.

"Some remarked that they would not live in California on account of the earthquakes. I answered that the thunder and lightning and cyclones of the east were more dreadful than our few light quakes. Two were killed in a storm in Kansas City while I was there. Had it occurred in a quake in California they would have talked about it for a month."

VOTERS HEAR TALK BY C. H. RANDALL

Candidate for Congress Is Glendale Guest; Tells of Eighteenth Amendment

The large dining room of the Glendale Sanitarium was filled last night with the friends of C. H. Randall, candidate for congress from this district, and a group of Glendale voters, men and women, who approve his past service in Congress and desire his return.

The banquet was served promptly at 7 o'clock and was up to the high standard of the Sanitarium. A fine musical program was rendered by the following: Miss Bernice Latimer, piano solo; Mrs. Rita Nelson, vocal solo; Frank Butterfield, vocal solo; Arthur Bellington, vocal solo; Miss Elizabeth Mottera, vocal solo and Dr. Jos. Marple, vocal solo. Don C. Lindley and Mrs. A. Belle Johnson were the accompanists.

List of Speakers

Alex Mitchell acted as toastmaster and in his delightful manner introduced the following speakers: City Manager William H. Reeves, E. F. Sanders, Rev. L. C. Yeoman, Frank Muhleman, Prof. Arthur Brown, Mrs. Nettie S. Jones, Mrs. Hattie Gaylord and Mattison B. Jones of Glendale and Wiley Phillips of Los Angeles.

All of the speakers expressed their warm friendship for Mr. Randall and their appreciation of his services.

Mr. Randall made the closing address, expressing his sincere appreciation for the hearty reception given to him and the many kind words expressed. He presented an able review of the Eighteenth amendment, calling it the greatest piece of legislation ever enacted. It was also one of the most popular since forty-six out of the forty-eight states at once adopted it, and also promptly adopted enforcement acts.

Invites Criminals

"Our own state of California, however, was not one of the states adopting the amendment. As a result we have invited criminals and law-breakers to come here, the speaker declared.

"When you go to vote," said Mr. Randall, "first turn your ballot to the amendments, and vote yes on No. 2. This is more important than any candidate."

He closed his address by a strong plea for increased interest in elections and of placing patriotism above party.

Rev. Ernest E. Ford Chosen Team Leader

Rev. Ernest E. Ford, pastor of the First Baptist church, is leader of the deputation team appointed by the State Baptist convenion to assist Baptist churches in Glendale, Burbank and Sunland in initiating their programs for the coming year. Rev. Ford is being assisted by Ira J. H. Sykes of the First Baptist church of Pasadena, and by a woman representative.

The deputation team idea was originated by the Northern Baptist convention and was passed on to the California state organization, which divided the state into two sections and appointed teams for the various sections.

It is the aim of these teams to visit the various churches and conduct inspirational meetings pertaining to the church activities. One member of a team represents the ministry, another member the church men and a third member the church women.

ASKS FOR IMPEACHMENT

CANTON, Ohio, Oct. 13.—The Ohio Federation of Labor here today unanimously adopted a resolution calling upon congress to impeach Attorney General Harry M. All Sorts of Good Things Are on Sale

For those who eat at home or for those who don't, Wheeler's delicatessen at 247 North Brand boulevard is a most satisfying goal. There one can find all sorts of good things to take home or can have a splendid lunch or dinner.

The little food shop is widely known for home-made pies and cakes, but this "home-made" taste is also found in all the other foods, which accounts for the success Mr. and Mrs. Wheeler have enjoyed during their year and a half in business.
